Theme	Strengthening fundamental English skills—vocabulary, grammar, and reading comprehension—to improve TOEIC scores
Course Objectives and Overview	This course meets twice weekly, aiming to achieve two objectives: ① Overall English proficiency enhancement and ② TOEIC test score improvement. In Part ①, students will solidify receptive knowledge of 1,500 high-frequency words essential for English comprehension and fundamental grammar points. Through input from textbooks and e-Learning materials, students will build knowledge. This knowledge will be reinforced through practice exercises and output activities, aiming to enable students to read and listen to simple sentences and clear, well-structured compound/complex sentences. In Part ②, students engage in TOEIC practice exercises to transform the knowledge acquired in Part ① into test-ready skills. Furthermore, from the perspective of developing employability, the course cultivates logical thinking skills and a broad perspective. Positioning TOEIC as a benchmark for international proficiency, it aims to equip students with practical English skills usable in the global community.

Theme	Strengthening fundamental English skills—vocabulary, grammar, and reading comprehension—to improve TOEIC scores
Course Objectives and Overview	This course meets twice weekly, aiming to achieve two objectives: ① Overall English proficiency enhancement and ② TOEIC test score improvement. In Part ①, students will solidify receptive knowledge of 1,500 high-frequency words essential for English comprehension and fundamental grammar points. Through input from textbooks and e-Learning materials, students will build knowledge. This knowledge will be reinforced through practice exercises and output activities, aiming to enable students to read and listen to simple sentences and clear, well-structured compound/complex sentences. In Part ②, students engage in TOEIC practice exercises to transform the knowledge acquired in Part ① into test-ready skills. Furthermore, from the perspective of developing employability, the course cultivates logical thinking skills and a broad perspective. Positioning TOEIC as a benchmark for international proficiency, it aims to equip students with practical English skills usable in the global community.

Theme	Strengthening fundamental English skills—vocabulary, grammar, and reading comprehension—to improve TOEIC scores
Course Objectives and Overview	This course aims to improve TOEIC scores by enhancing vocabulary, grammar, and reading comprehension skills. Specifically, the course first focuses on strengthening vocabulary and acquiring accurate grammar knowledge. Students then become accustomed to reading English texts through articles covering diverse themes in modern society. The goal is to enable students to identify keywords and key phrases, consolidate grammar knowledge, and achieve more accurate reading comprehension through repeated output practice. Furthermore, from the perspective of developing employability skills, it cultivates logical thinking and a broad perspective. Positioning TOEIC as a benchmark for international proficiency, it aims to equip students with practical English skills usable in the international community.
Prerequisites and Notes
Relation to DP	For details on the relationship between this course and the Degree Policy (DP), please refer to the following URL: https://www.keiho-u.ac.jp/faculty/taken/curriculummap.html
Learning Outcomes	By strengthening vocabulary and correctly understanding grammar, students will develop the ability to read English texts across various fields. Furthermore, based on an understanding of fundamental English sentence structures, students will repeatedly practice problem-solving exercises to cultivate the ability to interpret English texts using acquired vocabulary and grammatical knowledge. Through this course, students will achieve the following objectives: ① Thoroughly understand fundamental English skills and be able to write basic English sentences using this knowledge (grammar/vocabulary); ② Read diverse English texts, expand vocabulary, and comprehend sentence structure and content; ③ Improve TOEIC scores.

Course Objectives and Overview	This course meets twice weekly, aiming to achieve two objectives: ① Overall English proficiency enhancement and ② TOEIC test score improvement. In Part ①, students will solidify receptive knowledge of 1,500 high-frequency words essential for English comprehension and fundamental grammar points. Through input from textbooks and e-Learning materials, students will build knowledge. This knowledge will be reinforced through practice exercises and output activities, aiming to enable students to read and listen to simple sentences and clear, well-structured compound/complex sentences. In Part ②, students engage in TOEIC practice exercises to transform the knowledge acquired in Part ① into test-ready skills. Furthermore, from the perspective of developing employability, the course cultivates logical thinking skills and a broad perspective. Positioning TOEIC as a benchmark for international proficiency, it aims to equip students with practical English skills usable in the global community.

Furthermore, acquiring practical English skills requires constant exposure to the language. In class, you will solidify the fundamentals of English through foundational learning while cultivating applied skills through reading comprehension exercises. Each class session will assign numerous tasks. Develop the habit of self-directed learning by advancing your studies both inside and outside the classroom—through vocabulary expansion via e-Learning, reviewing English grammar, and preparing for and reviewing TOEIC questions. Participate actively and speak up in class. To measure learning outcomes, students take the TOEIC IP test administered each semester.

Theme	Strengthening fundamental English skills—vocabulary, grammar, and reading comprehension—to improve TOEIC scores
Course Objectives and Overview	This course meets twice weekly, aiming to achieve two objectives: ① Overall English proficiency enhancement and ② TOEIC test score improvement. In Part ①, students will solidify receptive knowledge of 1,500 high-frequency words essential for English comprehension and fundamental grammar points. Through input from textbooks and e-Learning materials, students will build knowledge. This knowledge will be reinforced through practice exercises and output activities, aiming to enable students to read and listen to simple sentences and clear, well-structured compound/complex sentences. In Part ②, students engage in TOEIC practice exercises to transform the knowledge acquired in Part ① into test-ready skills. Furthermore, from the perspective of developing employability, the course cultivates logical thinking skills and a broad perspective. Positioning TOEIC as a benchmark for international proficiency, it aims to equip students with practical English skills for use in the global community.

Theme	Strengthening fundamental English skills–vocabulary, grammar, and reading comprehension—to improve TOEIC scores
Course Objectives and Overview	This course aims to improve TOEIC scores by enhancing vocabulary, grammar, and reading comprehension skills. Specifically, the course first focuses on strengthening vocabulary and acquiring accurate grammar knowledge. Students then become accustomed to reading English texts through articles covering diverse themes in modern society. The goal is to enable students to identify keywords and key phrases, consolidate grammar knowledge, and achieve more accurate reading comprehension through repeated output practice. Furthermore, from the perspective of developing employability skills, it cultivates logical thinking and a broad perspective. Positioning TOEIC as a benchmark for international proficiency, it aims to equip students with practical English skills usable in the international community.

Relevance to DP	For details on how this course relates to the Degree Policy (DP), please refer to the following URL: https://www.keiho-u.ac.jp/faculty/taken/curriculummap.html
Learning Outcomes	By strengthening vocabulary and correctly understanding grammar, students will develop the ability to read English texts across various fields. Furthermore, based on an understanding of fundamental English sentence structures, students will repeatedly practice problem-solving exercises to develop the ability to interpret English texts using acquired vocabulary and grammar knowledge. Through this course, the objectives are: ① Not only to thoroughly understand the foundational level of English, but also to be able to write complex English sentences using that knowledge (grammar/vocabulary); ② To read diverse English texts, expand vocabulary, and understand sentence structures and content; ③ To improve TOEIC scores.
Preparation for Qualification and Certification Exams

This course requires To succeed in a global society, English proficiency as a communication tool is	To thrive in a global society, English proficiency as a communication tool is essential. Furthermore, acquiring practical English skills requires constant exposure to the language. In class, we will solidify the fundamentals of English proficiency through learning activities focused on basic English skills (), while cultivating applied skills through reading comprehension exercises. Each class session will assign numerous tasks. By advancing your learning both in and outside of class—such as expanding your vocabulary, reviewing English grammar, and preparing for and reviewing reading problems—you will develop the habit of self-directed study.

Theme	Focusing on English listening comprehension, conversation, grammar, and vocabulary, this course aims to strengthen foundational knowledge and cultivate operational skills.
Course Objectives and Overview	Develop speaking and conversational skills to prepare for future activities such as overseas experiences, study abroad, international exchange, and the workplace. Particular emphasis is placed on transforming "words you understand" (receptive vocabulary, passive vocabulary) into "words you can use in conversation" (productive vocabulary, active vocabulary). Practice basic vocabulary, expressions, and sentence patterns, then apply them through activities like role-plays to solidify speaking skills. Additionally, assessments such as PROGOS (AI-based speaking test) help students understand their speaking proficiency level, set goals, and boost motivation. Icebreakers, pair work, and group work are frequently utilized.

Grade	G1	Teaching Method	Lecture
Course Category	Faculty of International Studies Specialized Education Subject
Theme	Focusing on English listening comprehension, conversation, grammar, and vocabulary, this course aims to strengthen foundational knowledge and cultivate operational skills.
Course Objectives and Overview	Develop speaking and conversational skills to prepare for future activities such as overseas experiences, study abroad, international exchange, and the workplace. Particular emphasis is placed on transforming "words understood in meaning" (receptive vocabulary, passive vocabulary) into "words usable in conversation" (productive vocabulary, active vocabulary). Practice basic vocabulary, expressions, and sentence patterns, then apply them through activities like role-plays to solidify speaking skills. Additionally, assessments such as PROGOS (AI-based speaking test) help students understand their speaking proficiency level, set goals, and boost motivation. Icebreakers, pair work, and group work are frequently utilized.
Prerequisites and Notes
Relevance to DP	For details on how this course relates to the Degree Policy (DP), please refer to the following URL: https://www.keiho-u.ac.jp/faculty/taken/curriculummap.html
Learning Outcomes	Develop speaking and conversational skills to prepare for future activities such as overseas experiences, study abroad, international exchange, and the workplace. Through assessments such as PROGOS (AI-based speaking test), students will understand their speaking proficiency level using the CEFR analytical dimensions (Range of Expression / Accuracy / Fluency / Interaction / Coherence / Phonology) and set goals to improve.

Course Title	Intensive English L/S II	Academic Year	2025
Instructor	Jonathan MILLS	Year of Offering	1234
Subject Numbering	Please refer to the following for subject numbering. https://www.keiho-u.ac.jp/faculty/taken/numbering.html	Credit Hours	2 credits
Grade	G1	Teaching Method	Lecture
Course Category	Faculty of International Studies Specialized Education Subject
Theme	Focusing on English listening comprehension, conversation, grammar, and vocabulary, this course aims to strengthen foundational knowledge and cultivate operational skills.
Course Objectives and Overview	Develop speaking and conversational skills to prepare for future activities such as overseas experiences, study abroad, international exchange, and the workplace. Particular emphasis is placed on transforming "words understood in meaning" (receptive vocabulary, passive vocabulary) into "words usable in conversation" (productive vocabulary, active vocabulary). Practice basic vocabulary, expressions, and sentence patterns, then apply them through activities like role-playing to solidify speaking skills. Additionally, assessments such as PROGOS (AI-based speaking test) help students understand their speaking proficiency level, set goals, and boost motivation. Icebreakers, pair work, and group work are frequently utilized.
Prerequisites and Notes
Relation to DP	For details on how this course relates to the Degree Policy (DP), please refer to the following URL: https://www.keiho-u.ac.jp/faculty/taken/curriculummap.html
Learning Outcomes	Develop speaking and conversational skills for future activities such as overseas experiences, study abroad, international exchange, and the workplace. Through assessments like PROGOS (AI-based speaking test), students understand their speaking proficiency level across CEFR analytical dimensions (Range of Expression / Accuracy / Fluency / Interaction / Coherence / Phonology) and set goals for improvement.

Theme	Strengthening fundamental English skills—vocabulary, grammar, reading comprehension, and listening comprehension—to improve TOEIC scores
Course Objectives and Overview	This course meets twice weekly, aiming to achieve two objectives: ① Overall English proficiency enhancement and ② TOEIC score improvement. For ①, students will solidify receptive knowledge of 3,000 high-frequency words essential for English comprehension and fundamental grammar points. Class activities involve building knowledge through input from textbooks and e-Learning materials, followed by reinforcing this knowledge through practice exercises and output activities. The goal is to enable students to read and listen to simple sentences and clear, well-structured compound and complex sentences. In Part 2, students engage in TOEIC practice exercises to transform the knowledge acquired in Part 1 into test-ready skills. Furthermore, from the perspective of developing employability, the course cultivates logical thinking skills and a broad perspective. Positioning TOEIC as a benchmark for international proficiency, it aims to equip students with practical English skills usable in the global community.

Theme	Strengthening fundamental English skills—vocabulary, grammar, reading comprehension, and listening comprehension—to improve TOEIC scores
Course Objectives and Overview	This course meets twice weekly, aiming to achieve two objectives: ① Overall English proficiency enhancement and ② TOEIC test score improvement. For ①, students will solidify receptive knowledge of 3,000 high-frequency words essential for English comprehension and fundamental grammar points. Class activities involve building knowledge through input from textbooks and e-Learning materials, followed by reinforcing this knowledge through practice exercises and output activities. The goal is to enable students to read and listen to simple sentences and clear, well-structured compound/complex sentences. In Part 2, students engage in TOEIC practice exercises to transform the knowledge acquired in Part 1 into test-ready skills. Furthermore, from the perspective of developing employability, the course cultivates logical thinking skills and a broad perspective. Positioning TOEIC as a benchmark for international proficiency, it aims to equip students with practical English skills usable in the global community.

Theme	Strengthening English reading comprehension through paragraph reading techniques, enhancing listening skills through output practice, and expanding vocabulary and expression abilities to improve TOEIC scores
Course Objectives and Overview	Students will learn the fundamentals of English paragraph reading and strengthen listening skills through repeated output practice. By consciously reading English sentences with structural awareness, the course aims to develop reading comprehension skills that enable students to grasp parts or the entirety of English passages without translating them into Japanese sequentially. Simultaneously, listening exercises will hone aural comprehension skills and improve vocabulary and English Expression. Furthermore, from the perspective of developing employability skills, we cultivate logical thinking and a broad perspective. Positioning TOEIC as a benchmark for international proficiency, we develop practical English skills for use in the global community.

Furthermore, acquiring practical English skills requires constant exposure to the language. In class, we will build a solid foundation in English through learning the basics of English ability, while cultivating applied skills through reading comprehension exercises. Each class session will assign numerous tasks. By advancing your learning both in and outside of class—such as expanding your vocabulary, reviewing English grammar, and preparing for and reviewing reading problems—you will develop the habit of self-directed study. Please participate actively and speak up in class.

Theme	Strengthening fundamental English skills—vocabulary, grammar, reading comprehension, and listening comprehension—to improve TOEIC scores
Course Objectives and Overview	This course meets twice weekly, aiming to achieve two objectives: ① Overall English proficiency enhancement and ② TOEIC score improvement. For ①, students will solidify receptive knowledge of 3,000 high-frequency words essential for English comprehension and fundamental grammar points. Class activities involve building knowledge through input from textbooks and e-Learning materials, followed by reinforcing this knowledge through practice exercises and output activities. The goal is to enable students to read and listen to simple sentences and clear, well-structured compound and complex sentences. In Part 2, students engage in TOEIC practice exercises to transform the knowledge acquired in Part 1 into test-ready skills. Furthermore, from the perspective of developing employability, the course cultivates logical thinking skills and a broad perspective. Positioning TOEIC as a benchmark for international proficiency, it aims to equip students with practical English skills usable in the global community.

Theme	Strengthening fundamental English skills—vocabulary, grammar, reading comprehension, and listening comprehension—to improve TOEIC scores
Course Objectives and Overview	This course meets twice weekly, aiming to achieve two objectives: ① Overall English proficiency enhancement and ② TOEIC test score improvement. For ①, students will solidify receptive knowledge of 3,000 high-frequency words essential for English comprehension and fundamental grammar points. Class activities involve building knowledge through input from textbooks and e-Learning materials, followed by reinforcing this knowledge through practice exercises and output activities. The goal is to enable students to read and listen to simple sentences and clear, well-structured compound/complex sentences. In Part 2, students engage in TOEIC practice exercises to transform the knowledge acquired in Part 1 into test-ready skills. Furthermore, from the perspective of developing employability, the course cultivates logical thinking skills and a broad perspective. Positioning TOEIC as a benchmark for international proficiency, it aims to equip students with practical English skills usable in the global community.

Theme	Strengthening fundamental English skills—vocabulary, grammar, reading comprehension, and listening comprehension—to improve TOEIC scores
Course Objectives and Overview	This course meets twice weekly, aiming to achieve two objectives: ① Overall English proficiency enhancement and ② TOEIC score improvement. For ①, students will solidify receptive knowledge of 3,000 high-frequency words essential for English comprehension and fundamental grammar points. Class activities involve building knowledge through input from textbooks and e-Learning materials, followed by reinforcing this knowledge through practice exercises and output activities. The goal is to enable students to read and listen to simple sentences and clear, well-structured compound/complex sentences. In Part 2, students engage in TOEIC practice exercises to transform the knowledge acquired in Part 1 into test-ready skills. Furthermore, from the perspective of developing employability, the course cultivates logical thinking skills and a broad perspective. Positioning TOEIC as a benchmark for international proficiency, it aims to equip students with practical English skills for use in the global community.

Theme	Strengthening English reading comprehension through paragraph reading techniques, enhancing listening skills through output practice, and expanding vocabulary and expression abilities to improve TOEIC scores
Course Objectives and Overview	Students will learn the fundamentals of English paragraph reading and strengthen listening skills through repeated output practice. By consciously reading English sentences with structural awareness, the course aims to develop reading comprehension skills that enable students to grasp parts or the entirety of English passages without translating them into Japanese sequentially. Simultaneously, listening exercises will hone aural comprehension skills and enhance vocabulary and English Expression abilities. Furthermore, from the perspective of developing employability, we cultivate logical thinking skills and a broad perspective. Positioning TOEIC as a benchmark for international proficiency, we develop practical English skills for use in the global community.

Theme	Focusing on English speaking and conversational skills while aiming to improve overall English proficiency.
Course Objectives and Overview	"Advanced English L/S" builds upon the skills acquired in the first-year required English course "Intensive English L/S." It cultivates speaking and conversational skills to prepare students for future activities such as overseas experiences, study abroad, international exchange, and the workplace. Particular emphasis is placed on transforming "words understood in meaning" (receptive vocabulary, passive vocabulary) into "words usable in conversation" (productive vocabulary, active vocabulary). Students practice basic vocabulary, expressions, and sentence patterns, then apply them through activities like role-plays to solidify speaking skills. Assessment tools such as PROGOS (AI-based speaking test) help students gauge their speaking proficiency level, set goals, and boost motivation. The course also makes extensive use of icebreakers, pair work, and group work.
Prerequisites and Notes
Relevance to DP	For details on how this course relates to the Degree Policy (DP), please refer to the following URL: https://www.keiho-u.ac.jp/faculty/taken/curriculummap.html
Learning Outcomes	Develop speaking and conversational skills to prepare for future activities such as overseas experiences, study abroad, international exchange, and the workplace. Through assessments such as PROGOS (AI-based speaking test), students will understand their speaking proficiency level using the CEFR analytical dimensions (Range of Expression / Accuracy / Fluency / Interaction / Coherence / Phonology) and set goals to improve.

Course Numbering	Please refer to the following for course numbering. https://www.keiho-u.ac.jp/faculty/taken/numbering.html	Credit Hours	2 credits
Grade	G2	Teaching Method	Lecture
Course Category	Faculty of International Studies Specialized Education Subject
Theme	Focusing on English speaking and conversational skills, this course aims to enhance overall English proficiency.
Course Objectives and Overview	"Advanced English L/S" builds upon the skills acquired in the first-year required English course "Intensive English L/S." It cultivates speaking and conversational skills to prepare students for future activities such as overseas experiences, study abroad, international exchange, and the workplace. Particular emphasis is placed on transforming "words understood in meaning" (receptive vocabulary, passive vocabulary) into "words usable in conversation" (productive vocabulary, active vocabulary). Students practice basic vocabulary, expressions, and sentence patterns, then apply them through activities like role-plays to solidify speaking skills. Assessment tools such as PROGOS (an AI-based speaking test) help students gauge their speaking proficiency level, set goals, and boost motivation. The course also makes extensive use of icebreakers, pair work, and group work.
Prerequisites and Notes
Relation to DP	For details on how this course relates to the Degree Policy (DP), please refer to the following URL: https://www.keiho-u.ac.jp/faculty/taken/curriculummap.html
Learning Outcomes	Develop speaking and conversational skills to prepare for future activities such as overseas experiences, study abroad, international exchange, and the workplace. Through assessments such as PROGOS (AI-based speaking test), students will understand their speaking proficiency level using the CEFR analytical dimensions (Range of Expression / Accuracy / Fluency / Interaction / Coherence / Phonology) and set goals to improve.

Grade	G2	Teaching Method	Lecture
Course Category	Faculty of International Studies Specialized Education Course
Theme	Focusing on English speaking and conversational skills while aiming to improve overall English proficiency.
Course Objectives and Overview	"Advanced English L/S" builds upon the skills acquired in the first-year required English course "Intensive English L/S." It cultivates speaking and conversational skills to prepare students for future activities such as overseas experiences, study abroad, international exchange, and the workplace. Particular emphasis is placed on transforming "words understood in meaning" (receptive vocabulary, passive vocabulary) into "words usable in conversation" (productive vocabulary, active vocabulary). Students practice basic vocabulary, expressions, and sentence patterns, then apply them through activities like role-plays to solidify speaking skills. Assessment tools such as PROGOS (AI-based speaking test) help students gauge their speaking proficiency level, set goals, and boost motivation. The course also makes extensive use of icebreakers, pair work, and group work.

Grade	G2	Teaching Method	Lecture
Course Category	Faculty of International Studies Specialized Education Subject
Theme	Focusing on English speaking and conversational skills, this course aims to enhance overall English proficiency.
Course Objectives and Overview	"Advanced English L/S" builds upon the skills acquired in the first-year required English course "Intensive English L/S". It cultivates speaking and conversational skills to prepare students for future activities such as overseas experiences, study abroad, international exchange, and the workplace. Particular emphasis is placed on transforming "words understood in meaning" (receptive vocabulary, passive vocabulary) into "words usable in conversation" (productive vocabulary, active vocabulary). Students practice basic vocabulary, expressions, and sentence patterns, then apply them through activities like role-plays to solidify speaking skills. Assessment tools such as PROGOS (AI-based speaking test) help students gauge their speaking proficiency level, set goals, and boost motivation. The course also makes extensive use of icebreakers, pair work, and group work.
Prerequisites and Notes

Theme	Focusing on English speaking and conversational skills, this course aims to enhance overall English proficiency.
Course Objectives and Overview	"Advanced English L/S" builds upon the skills acquired in the first-year required English course "Intensive English L/S." It cultivates speaking and conversational skills to prepare students for future activities such as overseas experiences, study abroad, international exchange, and the workplace. Particular emphasis is placed on transforming "words understood in meaning" (receptive vocabulary, passive vocabulary) into "words usable in conversation" (productive vocabulary, active vocabulary). Students practice basic vocabulary, expressions, and sentence patterns, then apply them through activities like role-plays to solidify speaking skills. Assessment tools such as PROGOS (AI-based speaking test) help students gauge their speaking proficiency level, set goals, and boost motivation. The course also makes extensive use of icebreakers, pair work, and group work.

Theme	In addition to understanding Japanese used in everyday situations, students will gain a certain level of understanding of Japanese used in a wider range of contexts.
Course Objectives and Overview	This course organizes classes according to students' Japanese proficiency levels. Alongside Japanese 2, it aims to help students build rich relationships at university. For higher-level classes, it aims to help students acquire solid knowledge in their specialized university studies and improve their Japanese language proficiency to the level required for university learning. To achieve this, the course focuses on building the foundational reading skills necessary for specialized university studies and aims to enable students to actively participate in discussions and other activities. Specifically, the course covers the following learning objectives: ① Acquiring essential reading skills, such as grasping the content of texts on various topics from general books, understanding the author's intent, distinguishing between examples and opinions, and focusing on key points when reading. ② Practice communicating one's own thoughts to others based on what has been read. ③ Through listening practice, aim to understand the flow, content, and relationships between characters in coherent conversations and news broadcasts at near-natural speeds, not only in everyday situations but also in a wide range of contexts, and grasp the main points.

Theme	In addition to understanding Japanese used in everyday situations, students will gain a certain level of understanding of Japanese used in a wider range of contexts.
Course Objectives and Overview	This course organizes classes according to students' Japanese proficiency levels. Alongside Japanese 2, it aims to help students build rich relationships at university. For higher-level classes, it aims to help students acquire solid knowledge in their specialized university studies and improve their Japanese language proficiency to the level required for university learning. To achieve this, the course focuses on building the foundational reading skills necessary for specialized university studies and aims to enable students to actively participate in discussions and other activities. Specifically, the course covers the following learning objectives: ① Acquiring essential reading skills, such as grasping the content of texts on various topics from general books, understanding the author's intent, distinguishing between examples and opinions, and focusing on key points while reading. ② Practice communicating one's own thoughts to others based on what has been read. ③ Through listening practice, aim to understand the flow, content, and relationships between characters in coherent conversations and news broadcasts at near-natural speeds across a wide range of situations, beyond just everyday contexts, and grasp the main points.

Theme	In addition to understanding Japanese used in everyday situations, students will gain a certain level of understanding of Japanese used in a wider range of contexts.
Course Objectives and Overview	This course organizes classes according to students' Japanese proficiency levels. Alongside Japanese 2, it aims to help students build rich relationships at university. For higher-level classes, it aims to help students acquire solid knowledge in their specialized university studies and improve their Japanese language proficiency to the level required for university learning. To achieve this, the course focuses on building the foundational reading skills necessary for specialized university studies and aims to enable students to actively participate in discussions and other activities. Specifically, the course covers the following learning objectives: ① Acquiring essential reading skills, such as grasping the content of texts on various topics from general books, understanding the author's intent, distinguishing between examples and opinions, and focusing on key points when reading. ② Practice communicating one's own thoughts to others based on what has been read. ③ Through listening practice, aim to understand the flow, content, and relationships between characters in coherent conversations and news broadcasts at near-natural speeds, not only in everyday situations but also in a wide range of contexts, and grasp the main points.
Prerequisites and Notes
Relevance to DP	For details on the relationship between this course and the Degree Policy (DP), please refer to the following URL: https://www.keiho-u.ac.jp/faculty/taken/curriculummap.html
Learning Outcomes	The learning objectives for this course are as follows. ① In concise factual texts within one's field of expertise or area of interest, one can fully grasp the subject matter. One can understand simple factual information about daily or routine work topics. If spoken with generally familiar pronunciation and clearly articulated, one can understand both the general message and specific details. ② Can write simple, coherent texts on familiar topics of personal interest by linking a series of separate elements into a coherent flow. ③ Can produce simple descriptions or presentations of moderate length on a variety of topics of personal interest with reasonable fluency. ④ Can confidently discuss familiar everyday and non-routine matters related to personal interests or professional fields. Can exchange, check, and confirm information. Can handle less routine situations and explain where problems lie. Can express opinions on abstract cultural topics such as films, books, and music.

Theme	In addition to understanding Japanese used in everyday situations, students will gain a certain level of understanding of Japanese used in a wider range of contexts.
Course Objectives and Overview	This course organizes classes according to students' Japanese proficiency levels. Alongside Japanese 2, it aims to help students build rich relationships at university. For higher-level classes, it aims to help students acquire solid knowledge in their specialized university studies and improve their Japanese language proficiency to the level required for university learning. To achieve this, the course focuses on building the foundational reading skills necessary for specialized university studies and aims to enable students to actively participate in discussions and other activities. Specifically, the course covers the following learning objectives: ① Acquiring essential reading skills, such as grasping the content of texts on various topics from general books, understanding the author's intent, distinguishing between examples and opinions, and focusing on key points when reading. ② Practice communicating one's own thoughts to others based on what has been read. ③ Through listening practice, aim to understand the flow, content, and relationships between characters in coherent conversations and news broadcasts at near-natural speeds across a wide range of situations, not just everyday contexts, and grasp the main points.

Course Category	Faculty of International Studies Specialized Education Subject
Theme	In addition to understanding Japanese used in everyday situations, students will gain a certain level of understanding of Japanese used in a wider range of contexts.
Course Objectives and Overview	This course organizes classes according to students' Japanese proficiency levels. Alongside Japanese 1, it aims to help students build rich relationships at university. For higher-level classes, it aims to help students acquire solid knowledge in their specialized university studies and improve their Japanese language proficiency to the level required for university learning. To achieve this, students will study Japanese grammar, build a foundation for expressing themselves in Japanese and understanding spoken Japanese, and aim to communicate smoothly with others. Specifically, the following learning activities will be conducted: ① Depending on the class level, students will learn N3, N2, or N1 grammar and practice using it to express themselves. ② Through listening practice, students will aim to understand the flow, content, and relationships between characters in coherent conversations and news broadcasts at near-natural speeds across a wide range of situations, beyond just everyday contexts, and grasp the main points.
Course Prerequisites and Notes
Relevance to DP	For information regarding the relationship between this course and the Degree Policy (DP), please refer to the following URL: https://www.keiho-u.ac.jp/faculty/taken/curriculummap.html
Learning Outcomes	The learning objectives for this course are as follows: ① Understand the main points of fairly complex content, both abstract and concrete, when spoken in standard Japanese, including technical discussions within one's own field of expertise. ② Understand the flow of lengthy or complex discussions, provided the topic is reasonably familiar and the direction of the conversation is explicitly signaled. ③ Be able to clearly and thoroughly describe or present on a wide range of topics related to one's field of interest. Be able to elaborate on points, strengthen and develop arguments by citing relevant examples. ④ Can converse fluently and naturally with native speakers to the extent that normal dialogue and relationships can be maintained without causing mutual stress. Can clearly explain and defend one's viewpoint by emphasizing personally significant events or experiences, providing relevant explanations, and offering evidence.
Preparation for Qualification and Certification Exams	Japanese Language Proficiency Test (JLPT) Levels: Aiming for passing the July exam. ※Detailed target levels will be announced within each class.
Feedback Methods	Homework is corrected and returned. Additionally, feedback is provided in class after midterm tests.

Theme	In addition to understanding Japanese used in everyday situations, students will gain a certain level of understanding of Japanese used in a wider range of contexts.
Course Objectives and Overview	This course organizes classes according to students' Japanese proficiency levels. Alongside Japanese 1, it aims to help students build rich relationships at university. For higher-level classes, it aims to help students acquire solid knowledge in their specialized university studies and improve their Japanese language proficiency to the level required for university learning. To achieve this, students will study Japanese grammar, build a foundation for expressing themselves in Japanese and understanding spoken Japanese, and aim to communicate smoothly with others. Specifically, the following learning activities will be conducted: ① Depending on the class level, students will learn N3, N2, or N1 grammar and practice using it to express themselves. ② Through listening practice, students will aim to understand the flow, content, and relationships between characters in coherent conversations and news broadcasts at near-natural speeds across a wide range of situations, beyond just everyday contexts, and grasp the main points.
Prerequisites and Notes
Relevance to DP	For details on the relationship between this course and the Degree Policy (DP), please refer to the following URL: https://www.keiho-u.ac.jp/faculty/taken/curriculummap.html
Learning Outcomes	The learning outcomes for this course are as follows: ① Understand the main points of fairly complex content, both abstract and concrete, when spoken in standard Japanese, including technical discussions within one's own field of expertise. ② Understand the flow of lengthy or complex discussions, provided the topic is reasonably familiar and the direction of the conversation is explicitly signaled. ③ Be able to clearly and thoroughly describe or present on a wide range of topics related to one's field of interest. Be able to elaborate on points, strengthen and develop arguments by citing relevant examples. ④ Can converse fluently and naturally with native speakers to the extent that normal dialogue and relationships can be maintained without causing mutual stress. Can clearly explain and defend one's viewpoint by emphasizing personally significant events or experiences, providing relevant explanations, and offering supporting evidence.
Preparation for Qualification and Certification Exams	Japanese Language Proficiency Test (JLPT) Levels: Aiming for passing the July exam. ※Detailed target levels will be announced within each class.

Theme	Students will be able to understand Japanese used in everyday situations to a certain degree.
Course Objectives and Overview	This course will be conducted in classes grouped according to students' Japanese proficiency levels. Alongside Japanese V, the goal is for students to be able to talk about themselves regarding extremely everyday and familiar topics or matters of personal interest, seek necessary information with the help of others, and utilize the information obtained. Therefore, the course aims to comprehensively improve skills such as reading, writing, listening, and speaking, while also learning the grammar necessary for expression and comprehension. It builds a foundation for continuous Japanese language learning, with an eye toward university studies and, ultimately, employment in Japan after graduation.
Prerequisites and Notes
Relevance to DP	For details on the relationship between this course and the Degree Policy (DP), please refer to the following URL: https://www.keiho-u.ac.jp/faculty/taken/curriculummap.html
Learning Outcomes	① Can understand short, simple texts written in very common, everyday or work-related language about concrete, familiar matters. ② Can write simple sentences or phrases about family, living environment, educational background, and current or recent work, using simple connecting words like "and," "but," or "because." ③ Can handle relatively easy conversations in short exchanges about predictable everyday situations, provided the other person helps if needed. Can manage simple daily interactions without too much difficulty. Can exchange thoughts and information on familiar topics and answer questions in predictable everyday situations. ④ When spoken slowly and clearly, can understand phrases and expressions related to specific, familiar topics or the most direct subjects (oneself, family, shopping, geography, work) concerning predictable everyday matters, and extract necessary information.
Preparation for Qualification/Certification Exams	Japanese Language Proficiency Test (JLPT) Levels: Aiming for passing the December exam. ※Detailed target levels will be announced within each class.

Theme	Students will be able to understand Japanese used in everyday situations to a certain degree.
Course Objectives and Overview	This course will be conducted in classes grouped according to students' Japanese proficiency levels. Alongside Japanese V, the goal is to enable students to speak about themselves regarding extremely everyday, familiar topics or matters of personal interest, seek necessary information with some assistance from others, and utilize the information obtained. Therefore, the course will comprehensively improve skills such as reading, writing, listening, and speaking, while also teaching the grammar necessary for expression and comprehension. It builds a foundation for continuous Japanese language learning, with an eye toward university studies and, ultimately, employment in Japan after graduation.

Learning Outcomes	① Can understand short, simple texts written in very common, everyday or job-related language about concrete, familiar matters. ② Can write simple phrases and sentences about family, living environment, educational background, and current or recent work, connecting them with simple conjunctions such as "and," "but," and "because." ③ If the other person is willing to help when needed, relatively easy conversation is possible in pre-determined situations or short exchanges. Simple daily interactions can be managed without much difficulty. In predictable everyday situations, thoughts and information about familiar topics can be exchanged, and questions can be answered. ④ When spoken slowly and clearly, they can hear and understand phrases and expressions related to predictable everyday matters—such as specific, familiar topics or the most direct subjects (themselves, family, shopping, geography, work)—and extract necessary information.

This subject requires Merely memorizing grammar rules or recognizing written text won't enable
Simply memorizing grammar rules or being able to read written text is not enough to communicate effectively in a foreign language. To speak, you need to know grammar and vocabulary, and also know how to use them. Actively try to use what you learn in class outside of class as well. Additionally, there is one midterm exam during the semester. Consistent daily study and achieving good scores on quizzes, assignments, midterms, and regular exams are key to passing this course.

This subject requires Merely memorizing grammar rules or recognizing written text won't enable
Simply memorizing grammar rules or being able to read written text is not enough to communicate effectively in a foreign language. To speak, you need to know grammar and vocabulary, and also know how to use them. Actively try to use what you learn in class outside of class as well. Additionally, there is one midterm exam during the semester. Consistent daily study and achieving good scores on quizzes, assignments, midterms, and regular exams are key to passing this course.

Theme	Students will be able to understand Japanese used in everyday situations to a certain degree.
Course Objectives and Overview	This course will be conducted with students grouped according to their Japanese language proficiency levels. Alongside Japanese V, the goal is for students to be able to talk about themselves regarding extremely everyday and familiar topics or matters of personal interest, seek necessary information with the help of others, and utilize the information obtained. Therefore, the course aims to comprehensively improve skills such as reading, writing, listening, and speaking, while also learning the grammar necessary for expression and comprehension. It builds a foundation for continuous Japanese language learning, with an eye toward university studies and, ultimately, employment in Japan after graduation.
Prerequisites and Notes
Relevance to DP	For details on the relationship between this course and the Degree Policy (DP), please refer to the following URL: https://www.keiho-u.ac.jp/faculty/taken/curriculummap.html
Learning Outcomes	① Can understand short, simple texts written in very common, everyday or job-related language about concrete, familiar matters. ② Can write simple sentences or phrases about family, living environment, educational background, and current or recent work, using simple connecting words like "and," "but," or "because." ③ Can handle relatively easy conversations in short exchanges about predictable everyday situations, provided the other person helps if needed. Can manage simple daily interactions without too much difficulty. Can exchange thoughts and information on familiar topics and answer questions in predictable everyday situations. ④ When spoken slowly and clearly, can understand phrases and expressions related to specific, familiar topics or the most direct subjects (oneself, family, shopping, geography, work) concerning predictable everyday matters, and extract necessary information.
Preparation for Qualification/Certification Exams	Japanese Language Proficiency Test (JLPT) Levels: We aim for passing the December exam. ※Detailed target levels will be announced within each class.

Subject Name	Japanese 4	Year Offered	2025
Instructor	HASHIMOTO Rin	Year of Offering	1234
Subject Numbering	Please refer to the following for subject numbering. https://www.keiho-u.ac.jp/faculty/taken/numbering.html	Credit Hours	2 credits
Grade	G1	Teaching Method	Lecture
Course Category	Faculty of International Studies Specialized Education Subject
Theme	Students will be able to understand Japanese used in everyday situations to a certain degree.
Course Objectives and Overview	This course will be conducted in classes grouped according to students' Japanese proficiency levels. Alongside Japanese V, the goal is to enable students to speak about themselves regarding extremely everyday, familiar topics or matters of personal interest, seek necessary information with some assistance from others, and utilize the information obtained. Therefore, the course will comprehensively improve skills such as reading, writing, listening, and speaking, while also teaching the grammar necessary for expression and comprehension. It builds a foundation for continuous Japanese language learning, with an eye toward university studies and, ultimately, employment in Japan after graduation.
Prerequisites and Notes
Relevance to DP	For details on the relationship between this course and the Degree Policy (DP), please refer to the following URL: https://www.keiho-u.ac.jp/faculty/taken/curriculummap.html
Learning Outcomes	① Can understand short, simple texts written in very common, everyday or work-related language about concrete, familiar matters. ② Can write simple sentences or phrases about family, living environment, educational background, and current or recent work, using simple connecting words like "and," "but," or "because." ③ Can handle relatively easy conversations in short exchanges about predictable everyday situations, provided the other person helps if needed. Can manage simple daily interactions without too much difficulty. Can exchange thoughts and information on familiar topics and answer questions in predictable everyday situations. ④ When spoken slowly and clearly, can understand phrases and expressions related to specific, familiar topics or the most direct subjects (oneself, family, shopping, geography, work) concerning predictable everyday matters, and extract necessary information.
Preparation for Qualification/Certification Exams	Japanese Language Proficiency Test (JLPT) Levels: Aiming for passing the December exam. ※Detailed target levels will be announced within each class.

Theme	Students will be able to understand Japanese used in everyday situations to a certain degree.
Course Objectives and Overview	This course will be conducted in classes grouped according to students' Japanese proficiency levels. Alongside Japanese V, the goal is to enable students to speak about themselves regarding extremely everyday, familiar topics or matters of personal interest, seek necessary information with some assistance from others, and utilize the information obtained. Therefore, the course will comprehensively improve skills such as reading, writing, listening, and speaking, while also teaching the grammar necessary for expression and comprehension. It builds a foundation for continuous Japanese language learning, with an eye toward university studies and, ultimately, employment in Japan after graduation.

Theme	Students will be able to understand Japanese used in everyday situations to a certain degree.
Course Objectives and Overview	This course will be conducted in classes grouped according to students' Japanese proficiency levels. Alongside Japanese V, the goal is to enable students to speak about themselves regarding extremely everyday, familiar topics or matters of personal interest, seek necessary information with some assistance from others, and utilize the information obtained. Therefore, the course will comprehensively improve skills such as reading, writing, listening, and speaking, while also teaching the grammar necessary for expression and comprehension. It builds a foundation for continuous Japanese language learning, with an eye toward university studies and, ultimately, employment in Japan after graduation.
Prerequisites and Notes
Relevance to DP	For details on the relationship between this course and the Degree Policy (DP), please refer to the following URL: https://www.keiho-u.ac.jp/faculty/taken/curriculummap.html
Learning Outcomes	① Can understand short, simple texts written in very common, everyday or job-related language about concrete, familiar matters. ② Can write simple sentences or phrases about family, living environment, educational background, and current or recent work, using simple connecting words like "and," "but," or "because." ③ Can manage relatively easy conversations in short exchanges about predictable everyday situations, provided the other person helps if needed. Can handle simple daily interactions without much difficulty. Can exchange thoughts and information on familiar topics and answer questions in predictable everyday situations. ④ When spoken slowly and clearly, can understand phrases and expressions related to specific, familiar topics or the most direct subjects (oneself, family, shopping, geography, work) concerning predictable everyday matters, and extract necessary information.

This subject requires Merely memorizing grammar rules or recognizing written text won't enable	Simply memorizing grammar rules or being able to read written text is not enough to communicate effectively in a foreign language. To speak, you need to know grammar and vocabulary, and also know how to use them. Actively try to use what you learn in class outside of class as well. Additionally, there is one midterm exam during the semester. Consistent daily study and achieving good scores on quizzes, assignments, midterms, and regular exams are key to passing this course.

Theme	Aims to develop an understanding of Japanese used in a wide range of situations, in addition to understanding Japanese used in everyday contexts.
Course Objectives and Overview	This course targets learners aiming for JLPT N2 or higher, offering level-specific classes to cultivate more advanced Japanese language proficiency. Building upon Japanese 6, and with an eye toward specialized university studies and ultimately employment in Japan after graduation, this course aims to enable students to read texts in their specialized fields and participate in discussions. To achieve this, students will: ① Read and comprehend articles and commentaries from newspapers and magazines covering a wide range of topics, focusing on texts with clear arguments; ② Read texts on general topics, understanding the flow of the discussion and the intended meaning of expressions; ③ Clearly communicating one's own opinions formed through reading to others.
Prerequisites and Notes
Relevance to DP	For details on how this course relates to the Degree Policy (DP), please refer to the following URL: https://www.keiho-u.ac.jp/faculty/taken/curriculummap.html
Learning Outcomes	The learning objectives for this course are as follows: ① Independently comprehend texts to a significant degree by selecting and using appropriate reference materials, adjusting reading speed and approach according to various purposes and text types. ② Develop writing and presentations clearly and systematically. Add relevant details to supplement content without losing sight of the main points. ③ Integrate and evaluate diverse information and arguments to produce clear, detailed texts on varied topics within one's specialized field of interest. ④ Use language fluently, accurately, and effectively on a wide range of topics of general, academic, professional, or leisure interest, clearly expressing relationships between ideas. Rarely encounter difficulties in expressing oneself, communicate naturally with accurate grammar and appropriate politeness for the situation.
Preparation for Qualification and Certification Exams	Japanese Language Proficiency Test (JLPT) Levels: Aiming for passing the July exam. ※Detailed target levels will be announced within each class.
Feedback Method	Feedback will be provided in class after midterm tests. Additionally, submitted homework assignments will be corrected and returned.

Course Category	Faculty of International Studies Specialized Education Course
Theme	Aims to develop an understanding of Japanese used in a wide range of situations, in addition to understanding Japanese used in everyday contexts.
Course Objectives and Overview	This course targets learners aiming for JLPT N2 or higher, offering level-specific classes to cultivate more advanced Japanese language proficiency. Building upon Japanese 6, this course prepares students for specialized university studies and, ultimately, employment in Japan after graduation. It aims to enable students to read and discuss texts in their specialized fields and participate in academic discussions. Specifically, students will: ① Read and comprehend articles and commentaries from newspapers and magazines covering a wide range of topics, focusing on texts with clear arguments; ② Read texts on general topics, understanding the flow of the discussion and the intended meaning of expressions; ③ Clearly communicating one's own opinions formed through reading to others.
Prerequisites and Notes
Relevance to DP	For information regarding the relationship between this course and the Degree Policy (DP), please refer to the following URL: https://www.keiho-u.ac.jp/faculty/taken/curriculummap.html
Learning Outcomes	The learning objectives for this course are as follows: ① Independently comprehend texts to a significant degree by selecting and using appropriate reference materials, adjusting reading speed and approach according to various purposes and text types. ② Develop writing and presentations clearly and systematically. Add relevant details to supplement content without losing sight of the main points. ③ Integrate and evaluate diverse information and arguments to produce clear, detailed texts on varied topics within one's specialized field of interest. ④ Use language fluently, accurately, and effectively on a wide range of topics of general, academic, professional, or leisure interest, clearly expressing relationships between ideas. Rarely encounter difficulties in expressing oneself, communicate naturally with accurate grammar and appropriate politeness for the situation.
Preparation for Qualification and Certification Exams	Japanese Language Proficiency Test (JLPT) Levels: Aiming for passing the July exam. ※Detailed target levels will be announced within each class.
Feedback Method	Feedback will be provided in class after midterm tests. Additionally, submitted homework assignments will be corrected and returned.

Theme	Aims to develop an understanding of Japanese used in a wide range of situations, in addition to understanding Japanese used in everyday contexts.
Course Objectives and Overview	This course targets learners aiming for JLPT N2 or higher, offering level-specific classes to cultivate more advanced Japanese language proficiency. Building upon Japanese 6, and with an eye toward specialized university studies and ultimately employment in Japan after graduation, this course aims to enable students to read books in their specialized fields and participate in discussions. To achieve this, students will: ① Read and understand the content of clear, well-argued texts such as newspaper and magazine articles and commentaries covering a wide range of topics; ② Read texts on general topics and understand the flow of the discussion and the intended meaning of expressions; ③ Clearly communicating one's own opinions formed through reading to others.
Prerequisites and Notes
Relevance to DP	For details on how this course relates to the Degree Policy (DP), please refer to the following URL: https://www.keiho-u.ac.jp/faculty/taken/curriculummap.html
Learning Outcomes	The learning objectives for this course are as follows: ① Independently comprehend texts to a significant degree by selecting and using appropriate reference materials, adjusting reading speed and approach according to various purposes and text types. ② Develop writing and presentations clearly and systematically. Add relevant details to supplement content without losing sight of the main points. ③ Integrate and evaluate diverse information and arguments to produce clear, detailed texts on varied topics within one's specialized field of interest. ④ Use language fluently, accurately, and effectively on a wide range of topics of general, academic, professional, or leisure interest, clearly expressing relationships between ideas. Rarely encounter difficulties in expressing oneself, communicate naturally with accurate grammar and appropriate politeness for the situation.
Preparation for Qualification and Certification Exams	Japanese Language Proficiency Test (JLPT) Levels: Aiming for passing the July exam. ※Detailed target levels will be announced within each class.
Feedback Method	Feedback will be provided in class after midterm tests. Additionally, submitted homework assignments will be corrected and returned.

Theme	Aims to develop an understanding of Japanese used in a wide range of situations, in addition to understanding Japanese used in everyday contexts.
Course Objectives and Overview	This course targets learners aiming for JLPT N2 or higher, offering level-specific classes to cultivate more advanced Japanese language proficiency. Building upon Japanese 6, and with an eye toward specialized university studies and ultimately employment in Japan after graduation, this course aims to enable students to read texts in their specialized fields and participate in discussions. To achieve this, students will: ① Read and comprehend articles and commentaries from newspapers and magazines covering a wide range of topics, focusing on texts with clear arguments; ② Read texts on general topics, understanding the flow of the discussion and the intended meaning of expressions; ③ Clearly communicating one's own opinions formed through reading to others.
Prerequisites and Notes
Relevance to DP	For details on how this course relates to the Degree Policy (DP), please refer to the following URL: https://www.keiho-u.ac.jp/faculty/taken/curriculummap.html
Learning Outcomes	The learning objectives for this course are as follows: ① Independently comprehend texts to a significant degree by selecting and using appropriate reference materials, adjusting reading speed and approach according to various purposes and text types. ② Develop writing and presentations clearly and systematically. Add relevant details to supplement content without losing sight of the main points. ③ Integrate and evaluate diverse information and arguments to produce clear, detailed texts on varied topics within one's specialized field of interest. ④ Use language fluently, accurately, and effectively on a wide range of topics of general, academic, professional, or leisure interest, clearly expressing relationships between ideas. Rarely encounter difficulties in expressing oneself, communicate naturally with accurate grammar and appropriate politeness for the situation.
Preparation for Qualification/Certification Exams	Japanese Language Proficiency Test (JLPT) Levels: Aiming for passing the December exam. *Detailed target levels will be announced within each class.
Feedback Method	Feedback will be provided in class after midterm tests. Additionally, submitted homework assignments will be corrected and returned.

Theme	In addition to understanding Japanese used in everyday situations, students will gain a certain level of understanding of Japanese used in a wider range of contexts.
Course Objectives and Overview	This course organizes classes according to students' Japanese proficiency levels. Alongside Japanese 1, it aims to help students build rich relationships at university. For higher-level classes, it aims to help students acquire solid knowledge in their specialized university studies and improve their Japanese language proficiency to the level required for university learning. To achieve this, students will study Japanese grammar, build a foundation for expressing themselves in Japanese and understanding spoken Japanese, and aim to communicate smoothly with others. Specifically, the following learning activities will be conducted: ① Depending on the class level, students will learn N3, N2, or N1 grammar and practice using it to express themselves. ② Through listening practice, students will aim to understand the flow, content, and relationships between characters in coherent conversations and news broadcasts at near-natural speeds across a wide range of situations, beyond just everyday contexts, and grasp the main points.
Prerequisites and Notes
Relevance to DP	For details on the relationship between this course and the Degree Policy (DP), please refer to the following URL: https://www.keiho-u.ac.jp/faculty/taken/curriculummap.html
Learning Outcomes	The learning objectives for this course are as follows: ① Understand the main points of fairly complex content, both abstract and concrete, when spoken in standard Japanese, including technical discussions within one's own field of expertise. ② Understand the flow of lengthy or complex discussions, provided the topic is reasonably familiar and the direction of the conversation is explicitly signaled. ③ Be able to clearly and thoroughly describe or present on a wide range of topics related to one's field of interest. Be able to elaborate on points, strengthen and develop arguments by citing relevant examples. ④ Can converse fluently and naturally with native speakers to the extent that normal dialogue and relationships can be maintained without causing mutual stress. Can clearly explain and defend one's viewpoint by emphasizing personally significant events or experiences, providing relevant explanations, and offering supporting evidence.
Preparation for Qualification and Certification Exams	Japanese Language Proficiency Test (JLPT) Levels: Aiming for passing the July exam. ※Detailed target levels will be announced within each class.

Theme	In addition to understanding Japanese used in everyday situations, students will gain a certain level of understanding of Japanese used in a wider range of contexts.
Course Objectives and Overview	This course organizes classes according to students' Japanese proficiency levels. Alongside Japanese 1, it aims to help students build rich relationships at university. For higher-level classes, it aims to help students acquire solid knowledge in their specialized university studies and improve their Japanese language proficiency to the level required for university learning. To achieve this, students will study Japanese grammar, build a foundation for expressing themselves in Japanese and understanding spoken Japanese, and aim to communicate smoothly with others. Specifically, the following learning activities will be conducted: ① Depending on the class level, students will learn N3, N2, or N1 grammar and practice using it to express themselves. ② Through listening practice, students will aim to understand the flow, content, and relationships between characters in coherent conversations and news broadcasts at near-natural speeds across a wide range of situations, beyond just everyday contexts, and grasp the main points.

Relevance to DP	For details on the relationship between this course and the Degree Policy (DP), please refer to the following URL: https://www.keiho-u.ac.jp/faculty/taken/curriculummap.html
Learning Outcomes	The learning outcomes for this course are as follows: ① Understand the main points of fairly complex content, both abstract and concrete, when spoken in standard Japanese, including technical discussions within one's own field of expertise. ② Understand the flow of lengthy or complex discussions, provided the topic is reasonably familiar and the speaker explicitly signals the direction of the conversation. ③ Be able to clearly and thoroughly describe or present on a wide range of topics related to one's field of interest. Be able to elaborate on points, strengthen and develop arguments by citing relevant examples. ④ Can converse fluently and naturally with native speakers to the extent that normal dialogue and relationships can be maintained without causing mutual stress. Can clearly explain and defend one's viewpoint by emphasizing personally significant events or experiences, providing relevant explanations, and offering evidence.

Theme	Aims to develop an understanding of Japanese used in a wide range of situations, in addition to understanding Japanese used in everyday contexts.
Course Objectives and Overview	This course targets learners aiming for JLPT N2 or higher, offering level-specific classes to cultivate more advanced Japanese language proficiency. Building upon Japanese 6, and with an eye toward specialized university studies and ultimately employment in Japan after graduation, this course aims to enable students to read texts in their specialized fields and participate in discussions. To achieve this, students will: ① Read and comprehend articles and commentaries from newspapers and magazines covering a wide range of topics, focusing on texts with clear arguments; ② Read texts on general topics, understanding the flow of the discussion and the intended meaning of expressions; ③ Clearly communicating one's own opinions formed through reading to others.

Course Category	Faculty of International Studies Specialized Education Subject
Theme	Aims to develop an understanding of Japanese used in a wide range of situations, in addition to understanding Japanese used in everyday contexts.
Course Objectives and Overview	This course targets learners aiming for JLPT N2 or higher, offering level-specific classes to cultivate more advanced Japanese language proficiency. In conjunction with Japanese 8, and with an eye toward specialized university studies and ultimately employment in Japan after graduation, this course aims to enable students to read books in their specialized fields and participate in discussions. To achieve this, students will: ① Read and understand the content of clear, well-argued texts such as newspaper and magazine articles and commentaries covering a wide range of topics; ② Read texts on general topics and understand the flow of the discussion and the intended meaning of expressions; ③ Clearly communicating one's own opinions formed through reading to others.
Prerequisites and Notes
Relevance to DP	For details on how this course relates to the Degree Policy (DP), please refer to the following URL: https://www.keiho-u.ac.jp/faculty/taken/curriculummap.html
Learning Outcomes	The learning objectives for this course are as follows: ① Independently comprehend texts to a significant degree by selecting and using appropriate reference materials, adjusting reading speed and approach according to various purposes and text types. ② Develop writing and presentations clearly and systematically. Add relevant details to supplement content without losing sight of the main points. ③ Integrate and evaluate diverse information and arguments to produce clear, detailed texts on varied topics within one's specialized field of interest. ④ Use language fluently, accurately, and effectively on a wide range of topics of general, academic, professional, or leisure interest, clearly expressing relationships between ideas. Rarely encounter difficulties in expressing oneself, communicate naturally with accurate grammar and appropriate politeness for the situation.
Preparation for Qualification/Certification Exams	Japanese Language Proficiency Test (JLPT) Levels: Aiming for passing the December exam. *Detailed target levels will be announced within each class.
Feedback Method	Feedback will be provided in class after midterm tests. Additionally, submitted homework assignments will be corrected and returned.

Course Numbering	Please refer to the following for course numbering. https://www.keiho-u.ac.jp/faculty/taken/numbering.html	Number of credits	2 credits
Grade	G2	Teaching Method	Lecture
Course Category	Faculty of International Studies Specialized Education Course
Theme	Aims to develop an understanding of Japanese used in a wide range of situations, in addition to understanding Japanese used in everyday contexts.
Course Objectives and Overview	This course targets learners aiming for JLPT N2 or higher, offering level-specific classes to cultivate more advanced Japanese language proficiency. In conjunction with Japanese 7 studies, and with an eye toward specialized university studies and ultimately employment in Japan after graduation, this course aims to enable students to read books in their specialized fields and participate in discussions. To achieve this, students will: ① Read and understand the content of clear, well-argued texts such as newspaper and magazine articles and commentaries covering a wide range of topics; ② Read texts on general topics and understand the flow of the discussion and the intended meaning of expressions; ③ Clearly communicating one's own opinions formed through reading to others.
Prerequisites and Notes
Relevance to DP	For details on how this course relates to the Degree Policy (DP), please refer to the following URL: https://www.keiho-u.ac.jp/faculty/taken/curriculummap.html
Learning Outcomes	The learning objectives for this course are as follows: ① Independently comprehend texts to a significant degree by selecting and using appropriate reference materials, adjusting reading speed and approach according to various purposes and text types. ② Develop writing and presentations clearly and systematically. Add relevant details to supplement content without losing sight of the main points. ③ Integrate and evaluate diverse information and arguments to produce clear, detailed texts on varied topics within one's specialized field of interest. ④ Use language fluently, accurately, and effectively on a wide range of topics of general, academic, professional, or leisure interest, clearly expressing relationships between ideas. Rarely encounter difficulties in expressing oneself, communicate naturally with accurate grammar and appropriate politeness for the situation.
Preparation for Qualification/Certification Exams	Japanese Language Proficiency Test (JLPT) Levels: Aiming for passing the December exam. ※Detailed target levels will be announced within each class.
Feedback Method	Feedback will be provided in class after midterm tests. Additionally, submitted homework assignments will be corrected and returned.

Theme	Aims to develop an understanding of Japanese used in a wide range of situations, in addition to understanding Japanese used in everyday contexts.
Course Objectives and Overview	This course aims to cultivate more advanced Japanese language proficiency in level-specific classes for learners targeting JLPT N2 or higher. Building upon Japanese 7, this course prepares students for specialized university studies and, ultimately, employment in Japan after graduation. It aims to enable students to read academic texts in their field and participate in discussions. Specifically, students will: ① Read and comprehend clear, well-argued texts such as newspaper and magazine articles and commentaries covering a wide range of topics; ② Read general-interest texts and understand the flow of the discussion and the intended meaning of expressions; ③ Clearly communicating one's own opinions formed through reading to others.
Prerequisites and Notes
Relevance to DP	For details on how this course relates to the Degree Policy (DP), please refer to the following URL: https://www.keiho-u.ac.jp/faculty/taken/curriculummap.html
Learning Outcomes	The learning objectives for this course are as follows: ① Independently comprehend texts to a significant degree by selecting and using appropriate reference materials, adjusting reading speed and approach according to various purposes and text types. ② Develop writing and presentations clearly and systematically. Add relevant details to supplement content without losing sight of the main points. ③ Integrate and evaluate diverse information and arguments to produce clear, detailed texts on varied topics within one's specialized field of interest. ④ Use language fluently, accurately, and effectively on a wide range of topics of general, academic, professional, or leisure interest, clearly expressing relationships between ideas. Rarely encounter difficulties in expressing oneself, communicate naturally with accurate grammar and appropriate politeness for the situation.
Preparation for Qualification/Certification Exams	Japanese Language Proficiency Test (JLPT) Levels: Aiming for passing the December exam. ※Detailed target levels will be announced within each class.
Feedback Method	Feedback will be provided in class after midterm tests. Additionally, submitted homework assignments will be corrected and returned.

Course Objectives and Overview	This course meets twice weekly, aiming to achieve two objectives: ① Overall English proficiency enhancement and ② TOEIC test score improvement. ① Focuses on consolidating receptive knowledge of 3,000 high-frequency words essential for English comprehension and fundamental grammar points. Through input from textbooks and other learning materials, students build knowledge. This knowledge is then reinforced through practice exercises and output activities, aiming to enable students to read and listen to simple sentences and clear, well-structured compound and complex sentences. In Part ②, students engage in TOEIC practice exercises to transform the knowledge acquired in Part ① into test-ready skills. Furthermore, from the perspective of developing employability, the course cultivates logical thinking skills and a broad perspective. Positioning TOEIC as a benchmark for international proficiency, it aims to equip students with practical English skills for use in the global community.
Prerequisites and Notes	This course is required for students enrolled in the English Communication Course starting in the 2023 academic year and thereafter. For students in the Asia-Pacific Course, while not required, we strongly encourage enrollment to advance the Faculty of International Studies' learning objectives of improving English proficiency and achieving higher TOEIC scores.
Relation to DP	For details on the relationship between this course and the Degree Policy (DP), please refer to the following URL: https://www.keiho-u.ac.jp/faculty/taken/curriculummap.html
Learning Outcomes	The learning objectives for this course are set as follows for vocabulary, grammar, reading comprehension, and output, aiming to acquire foundational academic English skills. 【Grammar and Vocabulary】 1. Recognize and understand the meaning of grammar and vocabulary covered in class that appear in sentences. 2. Achieve a score of 70% or higher on quizzes covering high-frequency words introduced in each class. 3. Achieve a score of 70% or higher on tests assessing explicit knowledge of grammar, vocabulary, and textbook content covered in class. 3. Acquire explicit knowledge of the grammar and vocabulary covered in class and be able to explain it to others. 4. Can create sentences and passages using grammar and vocabulary covered in class, employing correct grammar and usage. 【Reading Comprehension】 1. Understand coherent passages composed of grammar and vocabulary covered in class and summarize them. 2. Understand coherent passages composed solely of grammar and vocabulary covered in class and convey their meaning to others while incorporating personal opinions. 【Output】 1. Accurately pronounce vocabulary and sentences covered in class in a natural

Course Objectives and Overview	This course meets twice weekly, aiming to: ① strengthen overall English proficiency and ② improve TOEIC test scores. ① Focuses on consolidating receptive knowledge of 3,000 high-frequency words essential for English comprehension and fundamental grammar points. Through input from textbooks and other learning materials, students build knowledge. This knowledge is then reinforced through practice exercises and output activities, aiming to enable students to read and listen to simple sentences and clear, well-structured compound/complex sentences. In Part ②, students engage in TOEIC practice exercises to transform the knowledge acquired in Part ① into test-ready skills. Furthermore, from the perspective of developing employability, the course cultivates logical thinking skills and a broad perspective. Positioning TOEIC as a benchmark for international proficiency, it aims to equip students with practical English skills for use in the global community.
Course Requirements and Notes	This course is required for students enrolled in the English Communication Course starting in the 2023 academic year or later. While it is not required for students in the Asia-Pacific Course, we strongly encourage enrollment to enhance English proficiency and improve TOEIC scores, which align with the Faculty of International Studies' learning objectives.

Course Objectives and Overview	This course meets twice weekly, aiming to achieve two objectives: ① Overall English proficiency enhancement and ② TOEIC test score improvement. ① Focuses on consolidating receptive knowledge of 3,000 high-frequency words essential for English comprehension and fundamental grammar points. Through input from textbooks and other learning materials, students build knowledge. This knowledge is then reinforced through practice exercises and output activities, aiming to enable students to read and listen to simple sentences and clear, well-structured compound/complex sentences. In Part ②, students engage in TOEIC practice exercises to transform the knowledge acquired in Part ① into test-ready skills. Furthermore, from the perspective of developing employability, the course cultivates logical thinking skills and a broad perspective. Positioning TOEIC as a benchmark for international proficiency, it aims to equip students with practical English skills for use in the global community.
Course Requirements and Notes	This course is required for students enrolled in the English Communication Course starting in the 2023 academic year or later. For students enrolled in the Asia-Pacific Course, it is not a required course. However, we encourage you to actively enroll in this course to enhance your English proficiency and improve your TOEIC scores, which align with the Faculty of International Studies' learning objectives.
Relevance to DP	For details on the relationship between this course and the Degree Policy (DP), please refer to the following URL: https://www.keiho-u.ac.jp/faculty/taken/curriculummap.html
Learning Outcomes	The learning objectives for this course are set as follows for vocabulary, grammar, reading comprehension, and output, aiming to acquire foundational academic English skills. 【Grammar and Vocabulary】 1. Recognize and understand the meaning of grammar and vocabulary covered in class that appear in sentences. 2. Achieve a score of 70% or higher on quizzes covering high-frequency vocabulary introduced in each class. 3. Achieve a score of 70% or higher on tests assessing explicit knowledge of the grammar, vocabulary, and textbook content covered in class. 3. Acquire explicit knowledge of the grammar and vocabulary covered in class and be able to explain it to others. 4. Can create sentences and passages using grammar and vocabulary covered in class, employing correct grammar and usage. 【Reading Comprehension】 1. Understand coherent passages composed of grammar and vocabulary covered in class and summarize them. 2. Understand coherent passages composed solely of grammar and vocabulary covered in class and convey their meaning to others while incorporating personal opinions. 【Output】

	1. Accurately pronounce vocabulary and sentences covered in class in a natural English manner.

Course Objectives and Overview	This course meets twice a week and aims to achieve two objectives: ① strengthening overall English proficiency and ② improving TOEIC test scores. ① focuses on consolidating receptive knowledge of 3,000 high-frequency words essential for English comprehension and fundamental grammar points. Through input from textbooks and other learning materials, students build knowledge. This knowledge is then reinforced through practice exercises and output activities, aiming to enable students to read and listen to simple sentences and clear, well-structured compound and complex sentences. In Part ②, students engage in TOEIC practice exercises to transform the knowledge acquired in Part ① into test-ready skills. Furthermore, from the perspective of developing employability, the course cultivates logical thinking skills and a broad perspective. Positioning TOEIC as a benchmark for international proficiency, it aims to equip students with practical English skills for use in the global community.
Prerequisites and Notes	This course is required for students enrolled in the English Communication Course starting in the 2023 academic year and thereafter. For students in the Asia-Pacific Course, while not required, we strongly encourage enrollment to advance the Faculty of International Studies' learning objectives of improving English proficiency and achieving higher TOEIC scores.
Relevance to DP	For details on the relationship between this course and the Degree Policy (DP), please refer to the following URL: https://www.keiho-u.ac.jp/faculty/taken/curriculummap.html
Learning Outcomes	The learning objectives for this course are set as follows for vocabulary, grammar, reading comprehension, and output, aiming to acquire foundational academic English skills. 【Grammar and Vocabulary】 1. Recognize and understand the meaning of grammar and vocabulary covered in class that appear in sentences. 2. Achieve a score of 70% or higher on quizzes covering high-frequency vocabulary introduced in each class. 3. Achieve a score of 70% or higher on tests assessing explicit knowledge of the grammar, vocabulary, and textbook content covered in class. 3. Acquire explicit knowledge of the grammar and vocabulary covered in class and be able to explain it to others. 4. Can create sentences and passages using grammar and vocabulary covered in class, employing correct grammar and usage. 【Reading Comprehension】 1. Understand coherent passages composed of grammar and vocabulary covered in class and summarize them. 2. Understand coherent passages composed solely of grammar and vocabulary covered in class and convey their meaning to others while incorporating personal opinions. 【Output】 1. Accurately pronounce vocabulary and sentences covered in class in a natural

Theme	In addition to understanding Japanese used in everyday situations, this course aims to develop an understanding of Japanese used in a wide range of contexts, including academic and business settings.
Course Objectives and Overview	This course is designed for learners aiming for JLPT N2 or higher. Classes are organized by level to cultivate more advanced Japanese language proficiency. Therefore, students will acquire: ① JLPT N1 certification; ② the ability to read specialized books required for writing graduation theses in their major studies from the third year onward; ③ the ability to organize written content; and ④ various reading skills (speed reading, close reading) and discussion abilities necessary for graduate school admission or employment.
Prerequisites and Notes
Relevance to DP	For details on the relationship between this course and the Degree Policy (DP), please refer to the following URL: https://www.keiho-u.ac.jp/faculty/taken/curriculummap.html
Learning Outcomes	The learning objectives for this course are as follows: ① Can follow extended discourse on abstract and complex topics outside one's field of expertise, though occasional clarification of details may be necessary, particularly with speakers who use unfamiliar speech patterns. ② Understand a wide range of idiomatic and colloquial expressions and correctly recognize shifts in language register. ③ Students can comprehend extended discourse even when the structure is unclear or when relationships between content are implied rather than explicitly stated. ④ Can write clear, well-structured texts on complex topics. Can develop and sustain an argument by emphasizing relevant key points, adding supporting details, reasons, and relevant examples, and concluding appropriately.

This course requires Students taking this course	Students taking this course must take the JLPT. While the goal of this course is to prepare for passing N1, students who have repeatedly failed N1 should first thoroughly master vocabulary and grammar from beginner to N2 levels. Please try this approach. Mastering content up to N2 is essential for passing N1. A significant amount of study is absolutely necessary. Incorporate continuous learning outside of class, such as actively reading and listening to Japanese through news, newspapers, etc., a little bit each day.

Theme	Building upon Japanese 9, this course aims to deepen students' understanding of Japanese used in a wide range of contexts, including academic and business settings, in addition to everyday situations.
Course Objectives and Overview	This course is designed for learners aiming for JLPT N2 or higher. Classes are organized by level to cultivate more advanced Japanese language proficiency. Therefore, students will acquire: ① JLPT N1 certification; ② the ability to read specialized books required for writing graduation theses in specialized education starting in the third year; ③ the ability to organize written content; and ④ various reading skills (speed reading and close reading) and discussion abilities necessary for graduate school admission or employment.
Prerequisites and Notes
Relevance to DP	For details on the relationship between this course and the Degree Policy (DP), please refer to the following URL: https://www.keiho-u.ac.jp/faculty/taken/curriculummap.html
Learning Outcomes	The learning objectives for this course are as follows: ① Can follow extended discourse on abstract and complex topics outside one's field of expertise, though occasional clarification of details may be necessary, particularly with speakers who use unfamiliar speech patterns. ② Understand a wide range of idiomatic and colloquial expressions and correctly recognize shifts in language register. ③ Students can comprehend extended discourse even when the structure is unclear or when relationships between content are implied rather than explicitly stated. ④ Can write clear, well-structured texts on complex topics. Can develop and sustain an argument by emphasizing relevant key points, adding supporting details, reasons, and relevant examples. Can conclude appropriately.
Preparation for Qualification/Certification Exams	Japanese Language Proficiency Test (JLPT) Levels: Aiming for passing the December exam. ※Detailed target levels will be announced within each class.
Feedback Method	Feedback will be provided in class after midterm tests.

This course requires Students taking this course	Students taking this course must take the JLPT. While the goal of this course is to prepare for passing N1, students who have repeatedly failed N1 should first thoroughly master vocabulary and grammar from beginner levels up to N2. Please try this approach. Mastering content up to N2 is absolutely essential for passing N1. A significant amount of study is absolutely necessary. Incorporate continuous learning outside of class, such as actively reading and listening to Japanese through news, newspapers, etc., a little bit each day.

Theme	Acquire the foundational knowledge of international studies necessary for learning in the English Communication Course
Course Objectives and Overview	International Sociology Foundation A aims to equip students with the fundamental knowledge necessary for the English Communication Course's learning objectives: "communication skills centered on English," "understanding social and cultural differences across the world's regions," and "Inter-Cultural Understanding and diversity orientation." Therefore, this course focuses on acquiring the basic foundations in the three core areas of the course: ① English, ② Communication, and ③ Society/Culture. Students will learn how to view the world through these three lenses. It further aims to deepen students' understanding of the "international studies" perspective as captured by English communication.
Prerequisites and Notes	"Foundations of International Studies A," which provides basic knowledge of international studies, is a required course. All students take it in their first year along with "Foundations of International Studies B." "Foundations of International Studies A" is a foundational course for the English Communication Course. It focuses on subjects from the Foreign Language Development, Communication, Sociology/Culture, and Tourism/Hospitality fields. The course aims to develop communication skills centered on internationally applicable English proficiency. It also equips students with the ability to understand global issues and challenges facing various countries and regions using knowledge of society and culture, and to work towards solving these challenges. For each session, you will be assigned out-of-class tasks: completing a questionnaire for preparation and taking a review test to reinforce learning. Be sure to submit these assignments.

Theme	International Studies for English Communication Course Learning
Course Objectives and Overview	International Sociology Foundation A aims to equip students with the fundamental knowledge necessary for the English Communication Course's learning objectives: "communication skills centered on English," "understanding social and cultural differences across the world's regions," and "Inter-Cultural Understanding and an orientation toward diversity." Therefore, this course focuses on acquiring the basic foundations in the three core areas of the course: ① English, ② Communication, and ③ Society/Culture. Students will learn how to view the world through these three lenses. It further aims to deepen students' understanding of the "international studies" perspective as captured by English communication.
Prerequisites and Notes	This is a repeat course for "Foundations of International Studies A (Required Course)," which provides basic knowledge of international studies. It is taken by all students in their first year alongside "Foundations of International Studies B." "Foundations of International Studies A" is a foundational course for the English Communication Course. It focuses on subjects from the Foreign Language Development, Communication, Sociology/Culture, and Tourism/Hospitality fields. The course aims to develop communication skills centered on internationally applicable English proficiency, while also equipping students with the ability to grasp global issues and challenges facing various countries and regions using knowledge of society and culture, and to work towards solving these challenges. For each session, you will be assigned out-of-class tasks: completing a questionnaire for preparation and taking a review test to reinforce learning. Be sure to submit these assignments.
Relation to DP	For details on how this course relates to the Degree Policy (DP), please refer to the following URL: https://www.keiho-u.ac.jp/faculty/taken/curriculummap.html
Learning Objectives	"Foundations of International Studies A" and "Foundations of International Studies B" aim to equip students with the perspective (theory) of "International Studies," which underpins the interdisciplinary learning across multiple fields within the Faculty of International Studies. In "Foundations of International Studies A," - Students will understand the differences between the three domains: ① The World Through English, ② Communication, and ③ Society/Culture, and acquire foundational knowledge in these three areas. - By mastering learning in the three domains: ① The World Through English, ② Communication, and ③ Society/Culture, students acquire a "perspective" for viewing the world and a "method" for understanding it. - Using the three domains and fundamental knowledge from International Studies Fundamentals A, students can appropriately select courses aligned with their interests and desired career paths upon advancing to their second year.

Theme	Acquisition of fundamental knowledge and skills in information processing and ICT, information literacy (information utilization skills)
Course Objectives and Overview	• This course aims to provide students with fundamental knowledge and skills in Information Processing Basics and ICT (Information and Communication Technology), as well as information literacy (information utilization skills). These abilities constitute "general skills" essential for university life and represent "employability skills" indispensable for future careers. For example, at university, students research specific topics, write reports, and deliver presentations. Furthermore, in today's information-driven society, ICT is utilized in all contexts, and its effective use is required. • This course familiarizes students with basic PC operations and teaches the fundamentals of using essential software—word processing, spreadsheets, and presentations—most commonly employed in university life and business settings (covering operational knowledge and skills). Students will also learn how to utilize the university's academic systems, related SNS (Social Networking Services), cloud services, and email services; methods for searching for information using library information systems and the Internet; computers; information and communication networks; and information ethics and Information Security (IT Passport exam content).

Theme	Acquisition of fundamental knowledge and skills in information processing and ICT, information literacy (information utilization skills)
Course Objectives and Overview	• This course aims to provide students with fundamental knowledge and skills in Information Processing Basics and ICT (Information and Communication Technology), as well as information literacy (information utilization skills). These abilities constitute "general skills" essential for university life and represent "employability skills" indispensable for future careers. For example, at university, students research specific topics, write reports, and deliver presentations. Furthermore, in today's information-driven society, ICT is utilized in all contexts, and its effective use is required. • This course familiarizes students with basic PC operations and teaches the fundamentals of using essential software—word processing, spreadsheets, and presentations—most commonly employed in university life and business settings (operational knowledge and skills). Students will also learn how to utilize the university's academic systems, related SNS (Social Networking Services), cloud services, and email services. They will study information search methods using library information systems and the Internet, as well as computers, information communication networks, information ethics, and Information Security (covering IT Passport exam content).

Relation to DP	For details on the relationship between this course and the Degree Policy (DP), please refer to the following URL: https://www.keiho-u.ac.jp/faculty/taken/curriculummap.html
Learning Outcomes	The learning objectives for this course are to acquire the fundamental knowledge and skills in ICT (Information and Communication Technology) and information processing, as well as information literacy (information utilization skills), that are minimally required throughout the four years of university study and upon joining a company. Specifically, the following items are set as learning objectives. 1) Operate a PC and appropriately utilize the university's teaching system, related SNS, and cloud services. 2) Conduct appropriate information searches using the Internet (including library utilization methods, literature searches, and database utilization methods). 3) Explain information ethics, Information Security, personal information protection, copyright, and related topics, considering the characteristics of an information-based society. 4) Be able to input text using a keyboard (300 or more Japanese characters in 5 minutes). 5) Create simple slide materials using presentation software (PowerPoint). 6) Can create simple documents using word processing software (Word). 7) Can create simple summary tables and graphs using spreadsheet software (Excel) for analyzing, evaluating, and organizing information.

Theme	Mathematics, Elementary Statistics, and AI (Literacy Level)
Course Objectives and Overview	This course aims to heighten students' interest in mathematical, elementary statistics, and AI fields, while fostering foundational abilities to appropriately understand and utilize these disciplines. Literacy in Mathematical, Elementary Statistics, and AI constitutes "generic skills" essential for realizing Society 5.0 and achieving the SDGs, and also represents "employability" required in post-graduation careers. Basic knowledge and skills in mathematical/data science and AI are essential for understanding the legal nature of data and AI, tackling contemporary business challenges, and developing the ability to thrive in society. This course aims to develop these mathematical, elementary statistics, and AI competencies by tackling assignments while operating various office software. To facilitate practical learning using real-world societal challenges and actual data, assignments will utilize real-world problems and data provided by companies and other entities. • Students will also study laws and ethics related to information handling, including information ethics and Information Security (covering IT Passport exam content). This course complies with the "Mathematics, Elementary Statistics, and AI (Literacy Level) Model Curriculum."

Theme	Mathematics, Elementary Statistics, and AI (Literacy Level)
Course Objectives and Overview	This course aims to heighten students' interest in mathematical, elementary statistics, and AI fields, while fostering foundational abilities to appropriately understand and utilize these disciplines. Literacy in Mathematical, Elementary Statistics, and AI constitutes "generic skills" essential for realizing Society 5.0 and achieving the SDGs, and also represents "employability" required in post-graduation careers. Basic knowledge and skills in mathematical/data science and AI are also essential for understanding the legal nature of data and AI, tackling contemporary business challenges, and developing the ability to thrive in society. This course aims to develop these mathematical, elementary statistics, and AI competencies by tackling assignments while operating various office software. To facilitate practical learning using real-world societal challenges and actual data, assignments will utilize real-world problems and data provided by companies and other entities. • Students will also study laws and ethics related to information handling, including information ethics and Information Security (covering IT Passport exam content). This course complies with the "Mathematics, Elementary Statistics, and AI (Literacy Level) Model Curriculum."

Relation to DP	For details on the relationship between this course and the Degree Policy (DP), please refer to the following URL: https://www.keiho-u.ac.jp/faculty/taken/curriculummap.html
Learning Outcomes	The learning objectives for this course are to acquire competencies in mathematical, elementary statistics, and AI-related fields. Specifically, the following items are set as learning objectives: 1) Explain societal changes, data utilized in society, application domains of data and AI, real-world settings for data and AI utilization, and the latest trends in data and AI application. 2) Read, interpret, and handle data. 3) Explain considerations for handling data and AI, precautions for protecting data, and laws/ethics related to information handling, such as information ethics and Information Security. 4) Be able to process and analyze real data provided by companies, etc., and create report materials that contribute to solving real-world problems.

Theme	Mathematics, Elementary Statistics, and AI (Literacy Level)
Course Objectives and Overview	This course aims to heighten students' interest in mathematical, elementary statistics, and AI fields, while fostering foundational abilities to appropriately understand and utilize these disciplines. Literacy in Mathematical, Elementary Statistics, and AI constitutes "general skills" essential for realizing Society 5.0 and achieving the SDGs, and also represents "employability" required in post-graduation careers. Basic knowledge and skills in mathematical/data science and AI are essential for understanding the legal aspects of data and AI, tackling contemporary business challenges, and developing the ability to contribute effectively in society. This course aims to develop these mathematical, elementary statistics, and AI competencies by tackling assignments while operating various office software. To facilitate practical learning using real-world societal challenges and actual data, assignments will utilize real-world problems and data provided by companies and other entities. • Students will also study laws and ethics related to information handling, including information ethics and Information Security (covering IT Passport exam content). This course complies with the "Mathematics, Elementary Statistics, and AI (Literacy Level) Model Curriculum."

Theme	Cultivating practical ICT application skills using office software in business settings
Course Objectives and Overview	This course aims to build upon foundational knowledge and skills in Software Applications for Business to develop more practical application abilities. To achieve this, students will learn methods for collecting information and visualizing it appropriately using office software. Furthermore, they will acquire the ability to perform verification, analysis, and other tasks using processed information and compile the results into documents. Through tackling practical assignments in class, students will develop the ICT (Information and Communication Technology) application skills required in an information-driven society.

Course Objectives and Overview	This course comprehensively strengthens all four English skills with the goal of raising TOEIC® Listening & Reading (L&R) test scores to the 400-point range. Classes focus on building foundational skills through mastering frequently tested TOEIC vocabulary and reviewing key grammar points. Practical skills are enhanced through reading comprehension and listening exercises based on actual TOEIC test questions. Furthermore, regular quizzes, TOEIC-format practice exercises, and mock tests are conducted to periodically assess retention of learning content. This enables students to gauge their own understanding and address weaknesses early. Since consistent effort is essential for TOEIC score improvement, the course also provides guidance on TOEIC study methods to support self-directed learning and sustained score growth.

Course Objectives and Overview	This course comprehensively strengthens all four English skills with the goal of raising TOEIC® Listening & Reading (L&R) test scores to the 400-point range. Classes focus on building foundational skills through mastering frequently tested TOEIC vocabulary and reviewing key grammar points. Practical skills are enhanced through reading comprehension and listening exercises based on actual TOEIC test questions. Furthermore, regular quizzes, TOEIC-format practice exercises, and mock tests are conducted to periodically assess retention of learning content. This enables students to gauge their own understanding and address weaknesses early. Since consistent effort is essential for TOEIC score improvement, the course also provides guidance on TOEIC study methods to support self-directed learning and sustained score growth.

Course Objectives and Overview	This course comprehensively strengthens all four English skills with the goal of raising TOEIC® Listening & Reading (L&R) test scores to the 400-point range. Classes focus on building foundational skills through mastering frequently tested TOEIC vocabulary and reviewing key grammar points. Practical skills are enhanced through reading comprehension and listening exercises based on actual TOEIC test questions. Furthermore, regular quizzes, TOEIC-format practice exercises, and mock tests are conducted to periodically assess retention of learning content. This enables students to gauge their own understanding and address weaknesses early. Since consistent effort is essential for TOEIC score improvement, the course also provides guidance on TOEIC study methods to support self-directed learning and sustained score growth.

Course Objectives and Overview	This course comprehensively strengthens all four English skills with the goal of raising TOEIC® Listening & Reading (L&R) test scores to the 400-point range. Classes focus on building foundational skills through mastering frequently tested TOEIC vocabulary and reviewing key grammar points. Practical skills are enhanced through reading comprehension and listening exercises based on actual TOEIC test questions. Furthermore, regular quizzes, TOEIC-format practice exercises, and mock tests are conducted to periodically assess retention of learning content. This enables students to gauge their own understanding and address weaknesses early. Since consistent effort is essential for TOEIC score improvement, the course also provides guidance on TOEIC study methods to support self-directed learning and sustained score growth.

Course Objectives and Overview	This course comprehensively strengthens all four English skills with the goal of raising TOEIC® Listening & Reading (L&R) test scores to the 400-point range. Classes focus on building foundational skills through mastering frequently tested TOEIC vocabulary and reviewing key grammar points. Practical skills are enhanced through reading comprehension and listening exercises based on actual TOEIC test questions. Furthermore, regular quizzes, TOEIC-format practice exercises, and mock tests are conducted to periodically assess retention of learning content. This enables students to gauge their own understanding and address weaknesses early. Since consistent effort is essential for TOEIC score improvement, the course also provides guidance on TOEIC study methods to support self-directed learning and sustained score growth.

Theme	Strengthen English proficiency using TOEIC or TOEFL learning materials to build a foundation for the English communication skills necessary for effective interaction.
Course Objectives and Overview	This course comprehensively strengthens all four English skills, aiming for a TOEIC L&R score of 450 (or 600 depending on the class) or higher, and for TOEFL classes, a B1 level or higher in Listening/SWE (Structure and Written Expression)/Reading. • Solve TOEIC or TOEFL test-format questions, learn strategies, and aim for score improvement. • Acquire essential self-study methods for improving TOEIC or TOEFL scores. • Conduct vocabulary tests each session to reinforce high-frequency words, mastering usage and pronunciation. • Under the academic supervision of the university faculty, classes 2 and 3 on Wednesday 2nd period, as well as Wednesday 2nd period Class ① (International Students + TOEFL Class) and Class ② (International Students + General Students), will be taught by English instructors from ALC Corporation.
Prerequisites and Notes	This course is designed for students aiming to improve their English proficiency and is tailored for the TOEIC® L&R and TOEFL® ITP exams. International Studies students will be pre-assigned to classes based on their previous TOEIC scores and must pre-register. Students from the Faculties of Economics, Business Administration, and Law may also enroll. For first-year required English courses, the Intermediate level is recommended for Wed 2 Class 1, the Beginner level for Wed 2 Class 2, and the Basic level for Wed 2 Class 3. Additionally, Wed 2 Class 2 (International Student Class + General Student Class) is for international students and some students pre-registered based on placement. International students from the Economics, Business Administration, Law, and International Studies faculties wishing to study English should actively enroll in Wed 2 Class ② (International Student Class + General Student Class). Additionally, Wed 2 Class ① (TOEFL, General Students + International Students Class, Students Aiming for Exchange Programs) is an Advanced class focusing on TOEFL preparation. Students aiming for exchange programs, those wishing to study for the TOEFL in the future, and international students with high English proficiency should actively enroll.

Theme	Utilize TOEIC or TOEFL learning materials to strengthen English proficiency and build a foundation for the English communication skills necessary for effective interaction.
Course Objectives and Overview	This course comprehensively strengthens all four English skills, aiming for a TOEIC L&R score of 450 (or 600 depending on the class) or higher, and for TOEFL classes, a B1 level or higher in Listening/SWE (Structure and Written Expression)/Reading. • Solve TOEIC or TOEFL test-format questions, learn strategies, and aim to improve scores. • Acquire essential self-study methods for improving TOEIC or TOEFL scores. • Conduct vocabulary tests each session to reinforce high-frequency words, mastering usage and pronunciation. • Under the academic supervision of the university faculty, classes 2 and 3 on Wednesday 2nd period, as well as Wednesday 2nd period Class ① (International Students + TOEFL Class) and Class ② (International Students + General Students), will be taught by English instructors from ALC Corporation.
Prerequisites and Notes	This course is designed for students aiming to improve their English proficiency and is tailored for the TOEIC® L&R and TOEFL® ITP exams. International Studies students will be pre-assigned to classes based on their previous TOEIC scores and must pre-register. Students from the Faculties of Economics, Business Administration, and Law may also enroll. For first-year required English courses, the Intermediate level is recommended for Wed 2 Class 1, the Beginner level for Wed 2 Class 2, and the Basic level for Wed 2 Class 3. Additionally, Wed 2 Class 2 (International Student Class + General Student Class) is for international students and some students pre-registered based on placement. International students from the Economics, Business Administration, Law, and International Studies faculties wishing to study English should actively enroll in Wed 2 Class ② (International Student Class + General Student Class). Furthermore, Wed 2 Class ① (TOEFL, General Students + International Students Class, Students Aiming for Exchange Programs) is an Advanced class for studying TOEFL. Students aiming for exchange programs, those wishing to study TOEFL in the future, and international students with high English proficiency should actively enroll.
Relevance to DP	For details on the relationship between this course and the Degree Policy (DP), please refer to the following URL: https://www.keiho-u.ac.jp/faculty/taken/curriculummap.html
Learning Objectives	Through activities ① to ④, achieve a TOEIC L&R score of 450 or higher (600 or higher depending on the class). For the TOEFL class, achieve a B1 or higher in Listening/Speaking/Writing/Reading. ① Strengthening Vocabulary and Grammar Skills Achieve a correct answer rate of 80% or higher on every vocabulary quiz (TOEIC high-frequency words). ② Improving Listening Skills for TOEIC/TOEFL Understand approximately 60% of key information (e.g., characters' actions, setting, topic overview) in the TOEIC Listening section. ③ Improving Reading Skills for TOEIC/TOEFL Become familiar with the formats of passages appearing on TOEIC and TOEFL and understand approximately 60% of the main points. ④ Independent Learning

	Maintain a strong sense of purpose to achieve your target score, consistently complete assignments, and engage in learning proactively and systematically.

Theme	Strengthen English proficiency using TOEIC or TOEFL learning materials to build a foundation for the English communication skills necessary for effective interaction.
Course Objectives and Overview	This course comprehensively strengthens all four English skills, aiming for a TOEIC L&R score of 450 (or 600 depending on the class) or higher, and for TOEFL classes, a B1 level or higher in Listening/SWE (Structure and Written Expression)/Reading. • Solve TOEIC or TOEFL test-format questions, learn strategies, and aim for score improvement. • Acquire essential self-study methods for improving TOEIC or TOEFL scores. • Conduct vocabulary tests each session to reinforce high-frequency words, mastering usage and pronunciation. • Under the academic supervision of the university faculty, classes 2 and 3 on Wednesday 2nd period, as well as Wednesday 2nd period Class ① (International Students + TOEFL Class) and Class ② (International Students + General Students), will be taught by English instructors from ALC Corporation.
Prerequisites and Notes	This course is designed for students aiming to improve their English proficiency and is tailored for the TOEIC® L&R and TOEFL® ITP exams. International Studies students will be pre-assigned to classes based on their previous TOEIC scores and must pre-register. Students from the Faculties of Economics, Business Administration, and Law may also enroll. For first-year required English courses, the Intermediate level is recommended for Wed 2 Class 1, the Beginner level for Wed 2 Class 2, and the Basic level for Wed 2 Class 3. Additionally, Wed 2 Class 2 (International Student Class + General Student Class) is for international students and some students pre-registered based on placement. International students from the Faculties of Economics, Business Administration, Law, and International Studies who wish to study English are encouraged to actively enroll in Wed 2 Class ② (International Student Class + General Student Class). Furthermore, Wed 2 Class ① (TOEFL, General Students + International Students Class, Students Aiming for Exchange Programs) is an Advanced class focused on TOEFL preparation. Students aiming for exchange programs, those who wish to study for the TOEFL in the future, and international students with high English proficiency are encouraged to actively enroll.
Relevance to DP	For information regarding the relationship between this course and the Degree Policy (DP), please refer to the following URL: https://www.keiho-u.ac.jp/faculty/taken/curriculummap.html
Learning Outcomes	Through engagement with ① to ④, achieve a TOEIC L&R score of 450 or higher (600 or higher depending on the class). For TOEFL classes, achieve a B1 or higher in Listening/Speaking/Writing/Reading. ① Strengthening Vocabulary and Grammar Skills Achieve a correct answer rate of 80% or higher on every vocabulary quiz (TOEIC high-frequency words). ② Improving Listening Skills for TOEIC/TOEFL Understand approximately 60% of key information (e.g., characters' actions, setting, topic overview) in the TOEIC Listening section. ③ Improving Reading Skills for TOEIC/TOEFL Become familiar with the formats of passages appearing on TOEIC and TOEFL and understand approximately 60% of the main points.

	④ Independent Learning Maintain a strong sense of purpose to achieve your target score, consistently complete assignments, and engage in learning proactively and systematically.

Theme	History of the Formation of the Modern World
Course Objectives and Overview	This course focuses on major historical shifts shaping contemporary societal issues, particularly changes in interregional and inter-event correlations. It provides a broad perspective on the growth of cultures and civilizations across different regions, especially how they evolved through mutual exchange. The curriculum centers on studying the causes and consequences of representative events that significantly impacted the international community during specific historical periods. Particular emphasis is placed on examining and explaining the following two points: that diverse civilizations and cultures exist on Earth, each following its own unique path of development and change; and that regions and the world itself were shaped by the constant movement, trade, and interaction between peoples and races with different cultural backgrounds.
Prerequisites and Notes
Relevance to DP	For details on the relationship between this course and the Degree Policy (DP), please refer to the following URL: https://www.keiho-u.ac.jp/faculty/taken/curriculummap.html
Learning Outcomes	① Grasp major historical trends, such as the East-West trade represented by the Silk Road and the beginning of global exchange through the flow of silver from South America. ② Learn methods for analyzing historical change, focusing on pivotal turning points in each era. ③ Be able to apply a historical perspective when considering contemporary societal issues.
Preparation for Qualification and Certification Exams
Feedback Methods	After each lecture, conduct a short quiz aligned with the theme. Additionally, use the discussion and survey features of the learning portal to gather student responses and questions. Subsequently, introduce students' quiz answers, questions, and reflections while providing commentary and explanations of key points.

Theme	Introduction to Gender Studies
Course Objectives and Overview	The male/female dichotomy has always been considered "natural" or "obvious." However, such thinking is socially constructed and shapes our daily lives and thoughts. From the "gender" field on job application forms to everyday language, norms concerning gender and sexuality exert influence. This results in various forms of gender discrimination. Academic research known as feminism and gender studies has significantly transformed our society by challenging these inequalities and forms of discrimination. This course examines the historical positioning of women and the evolution of societal perceptions. We will not only review history and social movements but also acquire knowledge and perspectives on gender studies through pop culture (such as Disney and Studio Ghibli) and economic/legal viewpoints.
Prerequisites and Notes	This course includes assignments set during class sessions. These assignments will be evaluated as part of class participation (30%). Separately, you will be required to submit comments and questions for each class session using the Learning Portal's survey function. This component will be evaluated as Other (30%). The final evaluation will be based on a term paper. Please note there are deadlines for submissions, so please manage your time carefully when enrolling.
Relevance to DP	For details on how this course relates to the Degree Policy (DP), please refer to the following URL: https://www.keiho-u.ac.jp/faculty/taken/curriculummap.html
Learning Outcomes	Through this lecture, the following are the learning objectives: ① Understand the fundamental concepts in gender studies. ② Understand that gender is socially constructed and recognize its political nature. ③ To critically rethink existing social norms from a gender perspective.
Support for Qualification and Certification Exams
Feedback Method	Students will write comments via the learning portal after each class. Selected comments will be introduced in the following week's class, with responses to questions and supplementary explanations provided.

Notes for Taking This Course	The course is primarily lecture-based, but emphasizes interactive communication and encourages active student participation. Rather than a single instructor lecturing, the focus is on questions, in-class assignments, and discussions. In particular, we will consider and discuss themes and issues related to gender and sexuality based on everyday experiences.

Theme	Understanding the Mechanisms and Dynamics of Communication
Course Objectives and Overview	This course explores the mechanisms and various aspects of communication as an act of understanding others and seeking to be understood by them. The understanding sought through communication is not an unfiltered understanding of oneself or others, but rather a specific, intended understanding. This intended understanding exhibits diverse characteristics depending on the nature of the relationship between communication participants. This course aims to understand the various characteristics of intentional communicative acts. It also aims to enhance the skills necessary to become more effective communicators. From the perspective of developing employability, it cultivates logical thinking skills and a broad perspective.

Notes for Taking This Course When taking this course	We casually use the concept of 'culture' in our daily lives, but what exactly does 'culture' mean? Deeply considering this seemingly familiar yet elusive concept is the first step toward learning Inter-Cultural Communication. Inter-Cultural Communication isn't limited to situations where we interact with foreigners abroad; we can also find it in our more familiar surroundings. Through this course, I hope we can learn together to understand the diversity around us and cultivate mutual respect for ourselves and others.

Class Sessions	Class Format	Course Plan	Pre- and Post-Class Learning (Preparation/Review, etc.)	Pre- and Post-Class Study Time
Session 1	In-Person	Overview of the course, explanation of assessment methods We will consider three questions: What is culture? What does it mean for cultures to be different? What is communication?	After class, review the lecture content using the distributed materials. Based on this review, reflect on your own daily life and experiences, and complete an assignment reflecting on culture and communication. (120 minutes) As preparation for the next class, students will be assigned the task of reading the distributed materials on culture. (120 minutes)	4 hours
Session 2	In-Person	Learn about a provisional definition of culture and consider whether the various elements of our everyday communication belong to the visible or invisible aspects of culture.	After class, review the lecture content using the handout and complete an assignment reflecting on how you yourself are influenced by culture. (120 minutes) As preparation for the next class, students will be assigned the task of reading the distributed materials on culture and communication. (120 minutes)	4 hours
Session 3	In-Person	To explore culture and communication, we will learn about the components of communication. In pairs or groups, we will consider the connection between our communication and culture.	After class, review the lecture content using the handout and complete an assignment reflecting on how our communication practices relate to culture. (120 minutes) As preparation for the next class, students will be assigned to read the distributed materials on context. (120 minutes)	4 hours
Session 4	In-Person	To consider culture and communication, we will learn about high-context and low-context cultures. We will then learn about paralinguistics and, in pairs or groups, consider how context	After class, review the lecture content using the handout. Based on this review, an assignment on either context or paralinguistics will be assigned. (120 minutes) As preparation for the next class, students will	4 hours and paralinguistics each relate to culture.	ill be assigned to read the distributed materials on self-disclosure. (120 min)

Session 5	In-Person	To explore culture and communication, students will learn about self-disclosure, followed by turn-taking (conversational sequencing). Afterwards, in pairs or groups, they will consider how self-disclosure and turn-taking relate to culture.	After class, review the lecture content using the handout. Based on this review, an assignment on either self-disclosure or turn-taking will be assigned. (120 minutes) As preparation for the next class, students will be assigned to read the distributed materials on values. (120 minutes)	4 hours
Session 6	Face-to-Face	To consider what happens when people from different cultures meet and communicate, we will explore differences in values. Through real-life examples, we will learn about value differences influenced by culture. In pairs or groups, students will reflect on their own communication practices or experiences.	After class, review the lecture content using the handout and complete an assignment on value differences based on this review. (120 minutes) As preparation for the next class, students will be assigned to read distributed materials on conflict management styles, cross-cultural adaptability checks, and empathy. (120 minutes)	4 hours
Session 7	In-Person	To enhance self-awareness by considering what happens when people from different cultures meet and communicate. Learn about conflict management styles, cross-cultural adaptability checks, and empathy, and engage in self-reflection.	After class, review the lecture content using the handouts and complete an assignment related to self-awareness. (120 minutes) As preparation for the next class, students are assigned to read distributed materials on Inter-Cultural Communication skills. (120 minutes)	4 hours
Session 8	In-Person	To understand people from different cultures and accurately convey your thoughts and feelings to others, you will learn Inter-Cultural Communication skills (such as the D.I.E. Method and assertive communication). Through pair or group assertiveness and comprehensive exercises, you will practice how to actually use communication skills to solve problems and enhance your Inter-Cultural Communication skills through these exercises.	After class, review the lecture content using the distributed materials. An assignment on assertive communication will be assigned. (120 minutes) An assignment will be given to consider research methods and implementation plans for the next group work session. (120 minutes)	4 hours
Session 9	In-Person	Group Project: Compare two or more different cultures and investigate the communication characteristics of people belonging to each culture. First, each group will discuss and decide on a research question they wish to investigate. Then, they will conduct literature research to identify what prior studies exist related to their research question.	Continue the literature review started in class and complete an assignment summarizing your findings. (120 min) An assignment will be given to consider the research methods and implementation plan for the next group work session. (120 minutes)	6 hours
Session 10	In-Person	How to Find and Organize References	Search for and compile references following class instructions (240 min)	4 hours
Session 11	In-Person	Group Project: Compare two or more different cultures and investigate the communication characteristics of people belonging to each culture. Within each group, share and discuss the findings of your respective investigations. Then, prepare for the next group presentation.	If necessary, continue research, compile the results, and prepare for the group presentation. (240 minutes)	4 hours

Session 12	In-Person	Group preparation of presentation materials and practice	Presentation preparation (180 min)	4 hours
Session 13	In-person	Group Presentation 1	Individuals will be assigned the task of compiling a report summarizing the group project outline, using feedback from the presentation as reference. (180 min)	4 hours
Session 14	In-Person	Group Presentation 2	Individuals will be assigned the task of compiling a report summarizing the group project, using the comments on the presentation as reference. (180 minutes)	4 hours
Session 15	On-Demand	Summary	Preparation for the Final Exam	4 hours

Theme	Understanding diverse aspects of society and culture through linguistic phenomena.
Course Objectives and Overview	This course aims to deepen students' consideration of the meaning language holds for society and culture. Through comparing Japanese, English, and other languages, students will recognize that a language's grammatical system reflects the shared ideas (values) mutually agreed upon by its speakers. Building on this, students will understand that the grammatical systems we use unconsciously are deeply influenced by specific patterns of thought regarding relationships between people, or between people and nature, within each linguistic sphere.

Learning Outcomes	A globalizing world is one where a single set of values is shared, yet simultaneously one where diverse cultures come into contact and merge, while also colliding and fiercely opposing each other. In such a world, the concept of "multicultural coexistence" is not merely a pleasant-sounding slogan or a "given reality." It remains a "political stance" and an "orientation" that is constantly challenged by the harsh realities of national interest prioritization and ethnic conflict. This course aims to cultivate the following competencies essential for individuals aspiring to foster multicultural coexistence: 1. Learn fundamental knowledge and methods for understanding the structure and characteristics of language. 2. Gain an understanding of the various functions human language activities fulfill within society. 3. Learn key terms and major concepts for understanding cultural characteristics. 4. Deepen understanding of language's social functions and enhance abilities as active language users. 3. Acquire a methodology for understanding the nature and characteristics of culture through linguistic phenomena. 4. Deepen understanding of cultural diversity and equivalence.

Theme	Understanding the differences in values and customs among people from countries and regions with diverse cultural backgrounds
Course Objectives and Overview	This course aims to deepen students' understanding of the differences in values and customs among people from countries and regions with diverse cultural backgrounds, utilizing the fundamental knowledge of the social/cultural domain acquired in "World Viewed from Society/Culture" within "International Sociology A." Through specific case studies, students will recognize differences from their own culture and develop the ability to accept diverse cultures. Furthermore, it cultivates the foundational thinking necessary for international understanding, which is essential for employment in today's increasingly globalized society.
Prerequisites and Notes	This is an advanced course building upon "The World from a Social/Cultural Perspective" in "Foundations of International Studies A" and is a core foundational subject. As it deepens fundamental knowledge and perspectives on Inter-Cultural Understanding, it is mandatory for students enrolled in 2023 or later who plan to select the English Communication Course. It is also recommended for students planning to select the Asia-Pacific Course, as it provides essential foundational knowledge and perspectives needed in today's increasingly globalized society.

Course Category	Faculty of International Studies Specialized Education Subject
Theme	Based on case studies, understand the perspective of Sociology and learn about the current state and challenges of a global society that transcends national borders
Course Objectives and Overview	This course aims to grasp the current state and challenges of the global society that transcends national borders through the lens of International Sociology. This is achieved after learning the analytical perspectives (methodology) of Sociology, key subfields of Sociology, and specific sociological topics that contribute to understanding International Sociology. In this course, students will learn fundamental Sociology analytical perspectives through basic Sociology topics such as family, gender, and religion, which are also crucial for understanding International Sociology. Furthermore, students will learn International Sociology perspectives on specific cases, examining the causes, current state, and countermeasures related to transnational human mobility. Through this course, we aim to cultivate students' ability to analyze, from a Sociology perspective, the state of the international society in which they will likely be active in the future and how it can be improved. Course content may be adjusted as appropriate based on students' level of understanding.
Prerequisites and Notes	This is an advanced course building upon "The World from a Social/Cultural Perspective" in "Foundations of International Studies A" and is a foundational specialized subject. As this course deepens fundamental knowledge and concepts in International Sociology, it is recommended for students who enrolled in 2023 or later, plan to select the English Communication Course, and have an interest in the social/cultural domain. It is also recommended for students planning to select the Asia-Pacific Course, as it provides essential foundational knowledge and perspectives necessary for navigating our increasingly globalized modern society.
Relevance to the Degree Policy (DP)	For details on the relationship between this course and the Degree Policy (DP), please refer to the following URL: https://www.keiho-u.ac.jp/faculty/taken/curriculummap.html
Learning Outcomes	This course has the following three learning objectives: · Understanding the fundamental methodologies of Sociology. · Understanding and explaining Sociology perspectives for analyzing specific cases. Developing insights into transnational human mobility and its consequences in contemporary global society, based on knowledge of International Sociology.

Notes for Taking This Course When taking this course	In Japan, actions like bowing and nodding in agreement are habitual, even if they seem unreasonable at first glance. Looking around the world, we find other customs that are hard to call rational, along with monuments and group behaviors that are difficult to understand. When we relentlessly question the reasons and foundations of human society's activities, we sometimes arrive at religion. On the other hand, many people possess little knowledge about religion. This lecture turns its attention to such religions. The lectures will introduce Judaism, Christianity, Islam, Hinduism, Buddhism, and Shintoism, covering their "doctrines," "ritual practices," and "social norms." It will also explain the religious trends and ideologies underlying issues such as gender, the Israeli-Palestinian conflict, the invasion of Ukraine, suicide, and marriage.

Theme	In Japan, where the population is aging and birth rates are declining, "tourism" is one of the growth strategies. This lecture begins with the fundamentals of tourism studies, analyzes the current state of the tourism industry and tourism policy, and considers identifying and solving issues based on that analysis.
Course Objectives and Overview	This course comprehensively covers "tourism" from perspectives including industry, policy, history, and culture, enabling each student to acquire foundational knowledge of tourism. Particular emphasis is placed on students working in teams to conduct "group discussions" and "presentations," aiming to acquire and solidify this foundational knowledge. Additionally, students will perform data-driven tourism analysis using the Cabinet Office's Regional Economy Analysis System (RESAS).
Prerequisites and Notes	During class time, students will write and submit a "written assignment" based on the content covered in that session. Assignments will be required for all 10 sessions except the first session, the two group discussion sessions, and the two presentation sessions. Each assignment is worth 3% of the total grade, totaling 30%. Attendance will be taken based on these submissions. The instructor will distribute one paper per student for this assignment.
Relevance to DP	For details on how this course relates to the Degree Policy (DP), please refer to the following URL: https://www.keiho-u.ac.jp/faculty/taken/curriculummap.html
Learning Objectives	1. Acquire the academic ability to answer "What is tourism?" from perspectives including tourism-related industries, policies, history, and culture. 2. Acquire foundational knowledge of tourism and develop the academic ability to consider and articulate how one can engage with contemporary tourism. 3. Develop the ability to express analyses based on materials and facts in writing and produce original reports.

Theme	Studying international politics from the perspectives of economics, people, and culture
Course Objectives and Overview	The purpose of this course is to study the "soft" aspects of International Politics I, such as economics, trade, people, and culture. Furthermore, this course will focus not only on the positive aspects of globalization (increased prosperity and convenience) but also on its negative aspects (transnational issues, diversifying conflicts and frictions). For nations, security and peace remain paramount imperatives in any era. Consequently, military security has consistently been the most critical issue in international politics and International Politics I. Meanwhile, as globalization advances, the importance of the "soft" aspects of international politics—such as economics, trade, people, and culture—has grown dramatically. This course will explore not only international political economy but also themes like human security and soft power. This approach will deepen understanding of both the intensification of economic and trade relations and the cross-border movement of people and culture. Furthermore, to facilitate understanding of International Politics I, this lecture will extensively utilize case studies and current issues from the Asia-Pacific region. The content may be adjusted based on the level of understanding demonstrated by the students.
